REPORT WILLIAM THAW KILLED

William Thaw of Pittsburg, the leading American aviator in the French flying corps and holding the rank of lieutenant, has been killed in action, according to news received at Yale College today.

This is the second time that a report has reached this country of Thaw's death. The first one came from Paris on April 21.

At the Pittsburgh offices of Benjamin Thaw, father of William Thaw, it was stated this afternoon that no word had been received by the Thaw family indicating that the American aviator had been either wounded or killed.

Report Capture of Two U-Liners Named Bremen

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 18.—A New York newspaper today prints a story, which it declares was obtained from English sources, saying that the British have captured two German submarines named Bremen. It was stated by the paper's informant that a third Bremen now was on its way to this country.

The first Bremen, it was said, was captured in the Straits of Dover while it was zig-zagging under English warships. Nets ensnared her so completely, it was stated, that it required two days to get out the crew, of which five were dead and the others close to final exhaustion.

Many important documents were said to have been captured with the U-boat, which now is at Chatham.

A second Bremen was captured some time later, claims the paper's authority, but no details are known.

TO NAME LODGE'S OPPONENT TODAY

Democratic leaders today discussed these four possible candidates to take up the United States senatorial nomination now held by John F. Fitzgerald:

Former Governor Eugene N. Foss.

Matthew Hale, vice-chairman of the Progressive National Committee.

Richard W. Long, the South Framingham manufacturer.

Marcus A. Coolidge, Mayor of Fitchburg.

They went into a final conference this afternoon after announcing that undoubtedly one of the above four will be chosen to run against Henry Cabot Lodge.

The sentiment of the conferees was said to be gradually settling upon Mr. Long.

He is a man of wide business experience, is known to the rank and file as a loyal Democrat and is an enthusiastic supporter of President Wilson.

Frederick W. Mansfield, Democratic candidate for Governor, today issued a statement in which he suggests the name of Thomas Jefferson Boynton. Mr. Mansfield said:

"The candidate should be a Democrat. My preference is Thomas Jefferson Boynton. The very fact that he is a poor man will bring votes to him and to the entire Democratic ticket, which his name would grace."

The time for Mr. Fitzgerald's withdrawal will expire at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

RADCLIFFE GIRLS TO TURN ORATORS

Radcliffe girls who favor the suffrage cause will become campaign orators, it was announced. The suffrage leaders say that college women make the best speakers.

CIVIL WAR NEAR IN GREECE

Geneva, Oct. 18.—King Constantine of Greece is preparing to send his family out of the country, says a dispatch from Athens.

A treaty between Greece and Germany has prevented King Constantine from giving help to the allies, according to dispatches from Petrograd today. It is stated that the treaty was made at the opening of the German offensive against Serbia.

London, Oct. 18.—Greece is in a turmoil following sensational events of the past twenty-four hours. In Athens fighting is already reported as a result of popular demonstrations against acts of repression of the allies in taking over the Greek navy and otherwise limiting the Greek government.

Throngs are reported parading the streets of Athens, cheering King Constantine and assailing with hisses the allied representatives.

Special precautions are being taken to guard King Constantine of Greece from assassination. A dispatch from Athens this afternoon states that his body guard has been strengthened and the troops around the King's palace have been reinforced.

A dispatch from Zurich says that French and Italian marines who are policing Athens have arrested a number of the ringleaders in the riots.

French and Italian soldiers now hold in Athens the railway station, the City Hall, the Municipal Theatre and the Castalia barracks. A Greek council meeting has been called in the new crisis.

ASK U. S. HELP.

Four thousand Greek nationalists gathered about the American legation at Athens, demanding United States protection for the Greek "small nation" against the landing of allied marines.

The evident fear is that Greece may be plunged into war—but a war to preserve her present government.

REDMOND RENEWS FIGHT

Resolution Criticising Government of Ireland Expected to Revive Home Rule Battle

London, Oct. 18.—The Irish question was again brought to the fore in the House of Commons today with the introduction by John Redmond of a resolution criticising the system of government of the island. The resolution reads:

"That the system of government conflicts with the principles for which the allies are fighting in Europe, and is, or has been, mainly responsible for the recent unhappy events and for the present state of feeling in that country."

Since Mr. Redmond gave notice of his intention to attack the government, the Irish leaders have held several conferences with Baron Wimborne, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, but these probably had more to do with the suggestion of extension of conscription to Ireland than with the grievances arising from continuance of martial law and the failure to release all those arrested during the uprising in Ireland last Spring.

However, the question of conscription did not come under Mr. Redmond's motion. It doubtless will be discussed tomorrow, when the whole subject of the man power of the Empire comes under review.

John Rawlinson, Unionist member for Cambridge University, moved as an amendment to the Redmond motion the following:

"Having regard for the importance of the United Kingdom and Ireland combining with the rest of the Empire in presenting a united front to the enemy, it is not desirable at the present time to discuss controversial matters of domestic politics."

ALLIES REPULSED ON SOMME FRONT

By International News Service.

Berlin, Oct. 18.—The War Office this afternoon reported the repulse of all French and British attacks on the Somme during the last twenty-four hours. French assaults near Morval and Rancourt, the statement says broke down after hard fighting, while Franco-British thrusts also failed in the regions of Thiepval, Courcelette and Bouchavesnes.

British attacks on both sides of Eaucourt-L'Abbaye broke down under the German curtain of fire, it was stated. On the eastern front, the War Office reported the capture of 250 Russians and twelve machine guns on the Narajowka river, where Bavarian troops stormed Russian positions southwest of Herbutoff.

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Germany's last note concerning the sinking of the Lusitania will not be made public until after the presidential election. This was made clear today by Acting Secretary of State Polk, who authorized the following statement:

"The note has not been accepted. It will not be given out now. The department is not going to be drawn into a discussion of the submarine question at this time for partisanship purposes."

It was admitted that this statement did not mean that [illegible] would not later be officially accepted.

Austro-Hungarian planes gave battle and a big aerial engagement was fought high above the Adriatic.

The Admiralty statement said that one of the Austro-Hungarian planes was disabled by the Franco-Italian fire and fell into the sea.

The raid took place on Tuesday afternoon.

REVERSE RULING ON SOLDIER

Judges Bingham and Aldrich of the United States Court of Appeals, with Judge Putnam dissenting, in an opinion written today that will affect thousands of militiamen all over the country, overruled the decision of Judge Dodge of the United States District Court, whereby Alexander M. Emerson, who declined to take the federal oath, was released from military service on a writ of habeas corpus.

The finding of the court, as written by Judge Aldrich, says that "the order of the District Court is vacated, with directions that the petitioner be returned to the military company from which he was taken."

The order means that thousands of militiamen in Massachusetts and other parts of the country will be sent from their homes to armories and compelled to take the federal oath. How this will be done must be decided by the adjutant-general of each State acting in co-operation with the War Department. It is possible that some of the men affected may appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The decision of the court is far-reaching, and affects members of the National Guard in every State in the country, with the exception of Kansas. In that State the oath is worded differently, so that the soldier pledges allegiance to the President of the United States.

A TYPICAL CASE.

The case of Emerson was typical of many others in Massachusetts and was regarded as a test case.

Emerson is a Boston architect and was a member of Troop B of First Squadron Cavalry, M. V. M., at the time the troops were sent to the border last June.

He declined to take the new federal oath and contended that he was not subject to military orders any longer. When his case came before the attention of the United States District Court, the complainant was Colonel Warren E. Sweetser, who was then in charge of the military camp in Framingham.

WHAT RULING MEANS.

The overturning of Judge Dodge's decision today by the Court of Appeals gives the authorities power to take into military custody all members of the various State militia companies who have not taken the federal oath.

The decision is deemed of tremendous importance by the United States military authorities. A representative of the War Department followed the hearing closely at the Federal Building today.

Judge Putnam, in dissenting from his colleagues, in his report said:

"It seems to me that the act of June 3 and then the 16th is too positive and precise to be modified by construction in the manner attempted by the opinion of the court, and I therefore conclude that the decree of the district court should be affirmed and dissent to that extent from the opinion of the court in this case."

Policeman at Sokol Trial Says He Was Attacked and Struck Sokol When Latter Broke Away

Patrolman Elam W. Morgan of Joy street police station, first witness today at the trial of David Sokol, the lodging house keeper, who has made counter-charges of police brutality in arresting him, testified to "smashing" Sokol, as follows:

"I pulled Sokol off the bed and put a hammerlock on him. While I was walking him to the door Mrs. Sokol grabbed me with both hands at the throat. I pushed her hands down and, in doing so, released one hand from my hammerlock grip on Sokol. Sokol then got free from me and I smashed him right on the floor, and I didn't do it very gently either."

Again Morgan testified in cross examination:

Q.—After you saw that Sokol kicked Officer Donnelly, as you said you did, had you made up your mind to take him out, dead or alive? A.—Yes, after Sokol refused to go.

Q.—Did you use all your force when you hit Sokol. A.—I used all the force I had. I intended to put him out with the first blow.

QUOTES ACCUSED MAN.

Morgan also testified that when he was first talking with Sokol and telling him to submit to arrest, Sokol said:

"To —— with Station Three. Send Captain Peabody and his whole squad and I wouldn't go."

Sokol is accused of attacking a woman, of resisting arrest and of assault on Patrolman Elam W. Morgan and Owen J. Donnelly.

Just as Major Thomas Walsh, attorney for the government, put Morgan on the stand and was about to question him, W. R. Scharton, counsel for Sokol, interrupted with a statement to Judge Brackett that he desired to renew his application for warrants for the arrest of Morgan and his fellow-officer, Patrolman Owen J. Donnelly.

Scharton said they "brutally assaulted Sokol, breaking three of his ribs and causing other injuries," in making the arrest.

In rehearsing his complaint Scharton told Judge Brackett that Judge Murray first heard testimony on the

CALL AID TO FIGHT FIRE IN CHELSEA

Fifteen horses were rescued this afternoon when fire destroyed the sales stable of Ike Kotsen at the corner of Everett avenue and Fourth street and damaged the building of the Interior Finish Company at No. 164 Everett avenue, Chelsea.

The fire, starting from some unknown cause, swept the stable in a short time. Tons of hay, many pieces of harness and several carriages were consumed.

On account of the strong east wind that was blowing, Chief David M. Hudson ordered a general alarm. Help from Everett was summoned in order to protect several large business concerns that were in the path of the flames.

Within sixty feet of the fire on the Boston side are the Standard Oil Company works. Here was stored 30,000 gallons of gasoline and oil.

The damage is estimated by the police as $15,000 to the stable and $1,000 to the Interior Finish Company.

TOOK ENGINEER'S WORD AT WRECK

Westerly, R. I., Oct. 18.—Fred S. Evans, general chairman of the locomotive engineers of the New Haven road, again took the stand as a witness for the defence at the trial of Charles Mansfield, engineer of the Gilt Edge express, charged with manslaughter in connection with the wreck at Bradford on April 17.

Cross-questioning by Attorney Phillips for the State brought out the fact that the witness was near to Engineer Mansfield shortly following the wreck and that he was naturally interested in his welfare. He said he was able to repeat the exact words that Mansfield said after the wreck.

"And you took the engineer's word about the signals without looking yourself, did you?" asked Mr. Phillips.

"I took his word, for I knew the man," he said.

When asked if he ever thought on that night that court proceedings would follow Mr. Evans said he did not know.

ENGLAND CHARGES U. S. AIDED U-RAIDER

London, Oct. 18.—In view of the attitude adopted by Washington, belief was expressed in official circles today that England may address a note to the American government relative to the recent U-boat raid in American waters.

If a note is sent, however, it is expected to be a request for information rather than a protest. Despite the utterances of Foreign Minister Viscount Grey in Parliament yesterday relative to the German raid, cablegrams from the United States today indicate that the American government considers the incident closed.

In consequence of the present attitude of the American government England, it is believed, will follow a program different from that outlined by the foreign secretary when he said that no official action would be taken until the United States took a definite stand.

LISTEN TO CHARGES.

Direct charges that the United States has violated its neutrality, and thinly veiled innuendoes of collusion between American officials and the commander of the German submarine U-53, were made in the House of Lords by several of the most prominent peers in England.

The charges of neutrality violation were made by Lord Charles Beresford, former commander of the British home fleet, Earl Grey, former Governor-General of Canada, and other noted speakers.

Earl Grey made the direct demand that the United States government give assurances that the newspaper report describing how a United States torpedo boat destroyer sheered off at the request of the German submarine commander, to make room for the torpedoing of a British merchant man, was untrue.

ATTACKS U. S. NOTE.

Lord Beresford bitterly criticised the United States note on the matter of belligerent submarines entering its harbors. He declared the American view of what constituted neutrality was "comical." The submarine note, he asserted, was "too brief, to say the least."

He declared that the appearance of United States destroyers on the scene of the torpedoing made it appear that a previous arrangement had been entered into between the U-boat commander and American naval officers.

This was based apparently on reports that during his call at Newport, the German officer had requested that destroyers be sent out. The question of the protests of the United States against the presence of British cruisers off its coasts was then entered into. It was on this account that Viscount Grey made his statement.

This statement left no doubt that England expects an early explanation from the United States government on the U-53 incident. Such an explanation is practically diplomatically demanded.

"We assume that the United States will make a thorough investigation," asserted the foreign minister. "We further assume that its attitude will be made known in due time. Until then, we will make no representation on this question."

PROTEST EMPHATIC.

The foreign minister stated that the British government has instructed the commanders of the warships in United States waters to avoid as far as possible all circumstances which might cause an unfavorable impression in America. The American protest had been quite emphatic, and the naval commanders had been directed to meet the American request as far as is was in their power to do so.

As far as the submarine incident went, Viscount Grey declared that no proof was available that United States warship had facilitated in the sinking of a British merchantman by drawing off from the scene at the request of the German commander.

U. S. Will Take No Action on Raider

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The raid of the U-53 off the American coast is closed, so far as this government is concerned. No diplomatic communication will be made to England or to Germany concerning the submarine. The facts as revealed officially will, however, be given to any government asking them.

State Department officials today said that no official recognition would be taken of the statement in the House of Lords by Viscount Grey, that the operations of the U-53 were similar to those of British warships near American ports, which caused this government dissatisfaction.

The raid of the submarine is looked upon in official circles as an isolated case, and unless other raids on commerce are made, Germany will not be asked to keep her submarines off the American coast "as a friendly favor."

BARRETT HOME TO VOTE FROM FRANCE

Chicago, Oct. 18.—From the Somme battlefield to Chicago in eleven days was the trip John Barrett, director-general of the Pan-American Union of Washington, made in order to register for the national election. He told of his trip today as he started for the East. Barrett went to Europe to study the effect of the war on Pan-American trade. He was invited to visit the front in France. On October 6 he cabled to find out registration day in Chicago. That night the answer came and in a fast war automobile he made an all-night ride to Bordeaux and caught his ship. He arrived here just a few hours before the registration books closed.

WAR SUMMARY

Humiliation of Greece by the allies continues. London dispatches today reported that, with the navy seized, Athens under the allied guns and French and Italian marines landed, in the city, King Constantine's advisers have counselled him to abdicate and escape. The loyalists are making anti-entente demonstrations but the allied grip only tightens.

An aerial engagement high over the Adriatic between Austro-Hungarian hydro-aeroplanes on one side and Italian and French planes on the other was announced by Rome today, with the statement that one of the Austro-Hungarian machines was destroyed.

The Teuton attack in East Galicia has netted more than a mile of Russian trenches and about 2,000 Russian soldiers, according to Berlin. Petrograd describes the situation as "obstinate fighting."

A tremendous exchange of shellfire, much airship activity and occasional troop attacks, with no great advantage to either side, are the features of latest reports from the Somme.

GREEKS DEFEND CONSTANTINE BY RISING AGAINST ALLIES

It may prove to be civil war, as the allies are expected to have the aid of the Venizelos revolutionaries.

To prevent serious clashes between Greek civilians with the allied marines, Greek troops are guarding important points.

Greek soldiers form a strong guard in postoffice square in Athens. French forces have been landed to patrol Athens and Piraeus. The Greek authorities are bending every effort to prevent a situation that would give the commander of the Anglo-French fleet an opportunity for further measures of repression.

The Greek government is pinning its hopes on the military measures adopted by General Dracos, Minister of War, to prevent a serious result.

The uprising of Greeks in defence of the King, their first great outburst, followed the reading by Admiral Damianos, Minister of Marine, of the King's order of the day. The order was announced before the assembled officers and crews of the warships Kilkis, Lemnos and Averoff, which have been seized by the allies, the crews being replaced by French and English seamen.

Previously, the allies had permitted Greece to retain these ships while seizing all the rest of the Greek navy.

The King's order follows:

"Officers, sailors:

"In these hours, when, with hearts bleeding each new moment from new wounds deep in our souls, which so short a time ago, were proud in a united and victorious Greece, my government has been obliged to order you to leave the ships upon which you brought the news of the freeing of your liberated brothers.

"You come with tortured hearts and eyes wet with tears, every man faithful to his oath to the side of your King.

THANKS SAILORS.

"I thank you and I congratulate you, oh, my faithful sailors! I thank you not only as your King and as chief of the fleet, but as the representative of the country you love so much, to which you have given so much, and to which you are ready to give so much.

"May all our hopes soon be realized, and may the hour soon come when you will be able to return to your ships. The saints that have protected you in the past will protect you in the future and the glorious flag once more caught by the winds of the Greek seas, will bring hope and consolation wherever Greek hearts beat for the nation and the King."

After the ceremony the King assembled the officers about him and addressed them personally, expressing pride that they had scorned offers of money and honors and had remained faithful to their oath and their country.

He gave his word that he would stand by them to the end against whatever consequences their loyalty might entail.

SITUATION SERIOUS.

A dispatch from Athens says:

"The situation appears to be dangerous. There have been royalist demonstrations in the streets. Admiral du Fournet, commander of the Entente allied fleet in the Mediterranean, was hissed and a detachment of French sailors was driven back by a hostile crowd.

"A procession of some 4,000 malcontents headed by the Greek and American flags, stopped outside the American legation, protested against the landing of foreign marines and demanded the protection of the American minister, who was absent.

"The demonstrators then paraded the streets, singing the Greek national anthem."

The popular demonstrations on the streets of Athens followed the presentation of the latest Entente demands upon Greece by Vice-Admiral D'Artige du Fournet, commander of the French-British fleet.

KING MAKES ADDRESS.

The note he presented to the Greek government at Athens was of so grave a character that King Constantine hurried to the capital from his Summer palace at Tatoi and hastily called a Cabinet council.

It was the words of the King himself, addressed to the sailors discharged from the Greek warships Kilkis, Lemnos and Averoff, which have been seized by the allies, which so inflamed the Athens populace as to lead to an attack on the French marines.

Greece is now believed to be on the brink of revolution. With recognition extended to the revolutionary government of former Premier Venizelos by the Entente, and with that government preparing to send volunteer troops to the Macedonian front in support of the allies, Greeks are rising to the defence of the King.

The crisis has been reached with the presentation of the new Entente note to the King. This communication is of so serious character that all inkling of its contents is temporarily withheld by the allied censors.

The note was brought to the King's personal attention, as the allies have refused to recognize the new Lambros Cabinet, extending that honor to Venizelos, the rebel leader, instead.

ALLIES PRESENT NOTE.

The presentation of the note followed closely on the seizure of the Kilkis, Lemnos and Averoff. When the Entente demanded that the Greek fleet be turned over to them the three warships were excepted. It was demanded, however, that their rifles be dismounted and their crews reduced two-thirds. The Averoff is an armored cruiser. The Kilkis and Lemnos were formerly the United States battleships Idaho and Mississippi respectively. They were purchased by the Greek government several years ago.

Every indication is that Greece is on the verge of a civil war, compared to which all the outbursts so far have been mere simmerings. The supporters of the constitutional government until now have been so confident in the strength of the government that they did not bestir themselves to oppose the outbreak in various parts of the country. But now, with the dynasty toppling and every hour bringing greater burdens upon its bending shoulders, they are beginning to resort to physical force.

GREEKS MENACED.

More than 5,000 persons have already paraded the streets of Athens, according to dispatches. When their way was barred by French marines, landed, according to Admiral du Fournet's explanation, to reinforce the police, which department has been, taken over by the allies, the Greeks attacked the allied soldiers driving them back. It is now reported that machine guns have been landed and that the patrols are prepared to put down any further street demonstrations.

ENORMOUS LOSS BY AIR RAID ON LONDON

the Thames were exploded. At Hull buildings were destroyed, only the walls remaining standing. Heavy damage was done at Leeds, where there are many ammunition factories.

The alcohol factory of Pink & Sons at Portsmouth, and the sheds of Vickers & Fyffe were destroyed.

Twelve cars filled with horses were blown up. The docks at Portsmouth were struck and railway cars standing there were hit.

WAS RAID OF SEPTEMBER 23.

The raid referred to by the agency was made on September 23.

The Overseas agency quotes from the London weekly newspaper, the World, of date of October 2, as follows:

"From many parts of the country arrive complaints about superfluous warnings against Zeppelins, which, thanks to the nervousness of police help the Germans. I am sure that the real object of these airships is not the killing of women and children nor the terrifying of the population but the restriction of our ammunition output by bringing their operations to a standstill during the attacks. At some places thousands of working hours were lost this week. Therefore, we had better give warning and put out lights only when the airships are thirty or forty miles distant."

German papers, the agency continues, compare these results with affirmations of British papers that air attacks have not caused any damage. They point out the fact that the British government blocked the cables to the International News Service because it sent "incorrect" reports to New York about the success of German airships.

Greek King Appeals to Loyalty of Troops

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Rome, Oct. 18.—King Constantine is issuing daily proclamations to the Greek army and the sailors of the Greek navy, appealing to their loyalty. An Athens dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia today states that the events of the past few days must certainly show the Greek King that his government will perish if he persists in his pro-German attitude.

Former Ministers Gounaris and Streit have established a press bureau in Athens to further the pro-German propaganda.

The Greek war minister, the Giornale d'Italia says, has ordered extra pay for the Greek troops transported to Germany. The agitation in Athens continues.

French Retake Trench on Somme

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Oct. 18.—In a smashing counter-assault south of the Somme River the Germans penetrated first line trenches of the French last night. The success was short lived, however. The French immediately attacked and not only recaptured the position, but, according to the communique of the War Office today, killed or captured all the Germans in the trenches.

This fighting occurred in the sector of Berny-en-Santerre, which is near the southern end of the Somme front.

North of the river the Germans made three counter-attacks. All were directed against the new French positions around Sailly-Saillisel.

The attacks, although pressed home stubbornly, were all repulsed. The Germans suffered heavy losses.

The French official statement says:

"North of the Somme yesterday evening the enemy renewed his counter-attacks against our positions in Sailly-Saillisel. Three attacks from the north and the east were successively stifled in our fire, which inflicted considerable losses on the enemy.

"All our gains were maintained intact. There was no infantry action during the night.

"South of the Somme the Germans this morning launched an attack against one of our trenches east of Berny-En-Santerre. Some fractions of the enemy's first storming wave succeeded in penetrating our advanced trench sections. We immediately launched counter-attacks and the hostile occupants of our trench elements were either killed or made prisoners.

"Subsequent storming waves were taken under our barrier fire and forced to retire in disorder, levaing dead behind.

"South of the Avre our reconnoitering detachements penetrated enemy trenches in the region of Fresnieres and made some prisoners.

"Southeast of Rheims another surprise attack in the sector of Pompello was completely successful."

SMALL BEGINS LIFE TERM AT THOMASTON

Thomaston, Me., Oct. 18.—Guy Small of Otter Creek, who confessed to killing his aunt, Mrs. Emma Turnbull at Otter Creek, on August 4, spent his first day of a life sentence in State Prison today.

Small accepts his sentence with indifference and seems to be unconcerned. When asked by a reporter if he intended to be a model prisoner, he smiled as if to indicate he expected just such a question to be asked him and said, "O, sure." To all other questions, such as whether he was glad to get the confession off his mind, whether he was sorry he killed his aunt, and whether his confession was correctly reported in the newspapers, his one reply was, "O, sure."

Small confessed last Friday that he went to the home of his aunt after having drunk a quart and a half of whiskey, and was after her son's wages of $50.

"When she found what I was after," he said in his confession, "she fought me. I picked up a flatiron from the shelf and struck her on the head. She fell unconscious. It had almost killed her. Soon after I picked her up and carried her outdoors to the woods in back of the house on my shoulders. I beat her head. Then I tore off some of her clothes to wipe the blood from my hands. I wiped the bloody flatiron and threw it away in the woods. Then I ran through the brush in a roundabout way to my home, where I removed my blood-stained suit and burned the trousers."

Small is a man about thirty years old, apparently inoffensive, and seemingly intelligent and inclined to mind his own business. He leaves a wife and three children to fight their way in the world alone.

DESERTED ONCE, SHE'S BRIDE AT LAST

Mrs. Viola A. Ling, who was left waiting at the church by a man who answered her advertisement for a husband four months ago, but who fled from town on the day that had been named for the wedding, is now a bride. The story of her desertion, published in various newspapers, found its way to Robert J. Bradley, Moretown, Vt., and he wrote to her. Then he came to visit her, and Mrs. Bradley has gone to Moretown to join the man whose name she bears.

Bradley, who is a wealthy farmer, married Mrs. Ling in East Boston. The bride, who had been living on Ottawa street, Roxbury, had some packing to do, and many good-byes to say to friends. But Bradley had business interests which made it necessary for him to return home at once. Mrs. Bradley completed her preparations for the journey and set out for Vermont alone.

TROOPER OF 9TH SHOT IN BRAWL

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 18.—Corporal Frank T. Connelly, thirty-six, of No. 8 Kingsbury street, Roxbury, member of Company M of the Ninth Regiment, was shot in the left shoulder in a cafe brawl by Special Officer J. H. Jones. He is at the Fort Bliss Hospital, where it is said that the wound is slight. Jones is locked up on the charge of assault with a loaded revolver with intent to kill.

Private Lester Matthews of B Company of the Ninth was eating with Corporal Connelly while Jones was eating at a nearby table. Walter Cook, the proprietor, claims there was talk about the food and trouble about paying the bill.

Jones interfered and is alleged by the soldiers to have shot Connelly without warning in true Texas style. Several rash shootings have occurred here in the last few weeks. Apparently the policy is to shoot first and argue afterwards.

Corporal Connelly is a former regular. He served in the Fourth and Twenty-ninth Infantry regiments. He is a veteran of the Philippine campaign.

Major William J. Keville of the Eighth Regiment has completed his investigation of charges that Captain James F. Coupal of the Medical Corps mistreated recruits on the troop train between Boston and El Paso in July. Nearly a score of witnesses were heard. Major Keville will report his finding in writing to Lieutenant Colonel William H. Perry, acting command of the regiment, who in turn will report to General E. Leroy Sweetser, who ordered the inquiry.

Much interest is manifested in the outcome. Captain Coupal claims he is the victim of politics and personal prejudices on the part of persons who helped remove Colonel Frank A. Graves. While the order specifies alleged mistreatment of recruits en route to the border, it is known that the hearing was precipitated by a letter written by Captain Harold S. Wonson of the supply company to Major Campbell, who in turn called the matter to the attention of General Sweetser.

During the eleven-day hike sick soldiers are alleged to have been refused treatment by Dr. Coupal. At the Mesquite camp two members of the supply company are reported to have sought treatment. It is charged that they were refused on the ground that they should have reported at sick call, but that they were busy with supply duties at the time. Both men were suffering from colds contracted on the march.

BILLY SUNDAY'S BOSTON TABERNACLE TO HAVE ITS OWN POLICE STATION

W. C. Manning, former Revere Beach showman and now caretaker at Billy Sunday's tabernacle, and headquarters of police force which will be on duty during revival.

Police headquarters while Billy Sunday is in town will be at the Sunday tabernacle.

At any rate, there will be a police headquarters there, for the policing of the big crowds that gather to hear the revivalist is a real problem, and as many as thirty officers have been needed in other cities. Accordingly quarters for thirty officers have been arranged at the Sunday tabernacle. A big stove will keep the rooms comfortable, and ten easy chairs have been provided. The desk is equipped with a Bible, and will be kept supplied with newspapers.

"We may not need thirty officers," said "Joe" Speice, Billy Sunday's builder of tabernacles. "We can never tell how many police we'll need until we get some idea of the crowds. It is pretty certain that they are going to be comfortable, and probably some of them will hit the trail, as they have done in other places."

BEATS SHOW BUSINESS.

Caretaker W. C. Manning, who watches the gate of the tabernacle, and who has run many a show down at Revere Beach, is very enthusiastic over the coming of Billy Sunday.

"This is my great experience," he said. "I never saw it beaten in the show business. Religion is getting popular. If I have to answer one question a day about the tabernacle I have a hundred put to me. 'Are they going to charge for the seats?' 'How much does Billy get out of it?' 'Are you going to hit the trail?' Some of their questions are puzzlers. I tell them I will hit the trail if they will.

"Many ministers from all parts of the country come to ask me questions. I have had some of those Unitarian ministers, about whom there is so much trouble.

They come in here and look around. But it beats all to see how many people come here daily. I never saw more even when I was in the show business. It does me good to find people talking about getting religion. I have some cranks, too. They are always pelting me with Bible questions, but I'm not up on them. I tell them to keep those questions till Billy comes. But it's exciting here at times."

PRAYER MEETINGS GROW.

Throughout the city great enthusiasm is expressed in the prayer meeting campaign. The Rev. F. R. Carr, pastor of the Baptist Church of Roslindale, who has charge of the records of prayer meetings, reports: "Daily records are showing a marked increase in these meetings. There is no section not covered by them."

George Sunday arrived last night from Detroit, and will confer with "Joe" Speice about the sugaphone over the platform to be used by Billy Sunday to throw out his voice.

Two more assistants, Miss Rose M. Petteroff for women's work, and Miss Jean B. Lamont for Bible work, have been added to the Sunday staff. They will appear for the first time in Boston.

The Rev. Dr. D. M. Lockrow of Tremont Temple, who has fought liquor signs in the elevated trains and stations, has succeeded in getting the liquor "ads" in front of the Billy Sunday tabernacle removed.

TOWNS DECLARE WAR ON HIGH CAR FARES

The first step for municipal ownership of street railways in New England has been taken by the citizens of West Newbury, who, in special town meeting, voted in favor of the State operating the street railways and the immediate establishment of a municipally owned line of jitney busses between that town and Haverhill.

The line of jitneys will be owned and operated by the town. The citizens took this step because of the increase in fares on the Bay State lines that operate between their town and Haverhill and Newburyport.

A person making the trip from Haverhill to Newburyport at present pays fare thus: Eleven cents from Haverhill to the Town Hall, West Newbury; six cents to the fare point about 100 feet from Artichoke bridge; six cents to Newburyport—twenty-three cents.

Upon the return trip from Newburyport the fare, one cent less, is collected thus: Five cents from Newburyport to Artichoke; six cents from there to the Town Hall in West Newbury; six cents from that point to the Groveland line, and five cents to Haverhill.

Formerly these fares were twenty-three and twenty-two cents.

The people of West Newbury charge that the Bay State is not carrying out an agreement the old Lowell, Lawrence & Haverhill Street Railway Company, absorbed by the Bay State, made with the town when it was installed, that the fare to and from any point in West Newbury should never exceed five cents.

The town at that time, in consideration of that agreement, expended $1,200 for grading and, later, when the line was extended to Newburyport, it expended nearly $12,000 cutting down the grade of Pipe Stave Hill from 11 to 6 per cent.

GIRL WAKES AFTER SLEEP SINCE SUNDAY

Ipswich, Oct. 18.—Gladys Smith, the fifteen-year-old New Brunswick girl visiting relatives here, whose continuous sleep since Sunday night alarmed her friends and puzzled the physicians, is awake at last.

The child seemed to be perfectly normal when she awoke, and apparently was in the same condition after her more than twenty-four hours' sleep, as if she had had a normal night's rest.

No explanation has been offered that will throw any light on the strange case. The child and her cousin, Mrs. Charles W. Lathrope of Poplar street, where she is visiting, say that she had never overslept in that way before.

DERAILMENT CUTS T. R.'S SCHEDULE

Springfield, Ohio, Oct. 18.—Colonel Roosevelt's special train, on which he is touring the West for Hughes, today was forced by a derailment near Delaware to make a detour of about 150 miles. The Colonel's speaking dates for the day were disarranged. More than two hours were lost. Twelve short platform appearances of the Colonel between Cincinnati and Louisville were cancelled.

AUSTRALIA ASKS BILLY SUNDAY TO COME

By ELIAS A. M'QUAID.

Detroit, Oct. 18.—The Rev. William A. Sunday received today a call from far-off Australia.

An inter-city organization among the evangelical churches of Australia, representing Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and other centres, urges the American baseball-player-evangelist to give Australia a whole year following his Winter campaign in New York.

Mr. Sunday has taken the call under advisement. If the war were over he would be inclined to go, he says, but anyhow he will "pray over it."

The famous evangelist preached twice yesterday to churchmen. In the afternoon he tried out on the pastors of Detroit a sermon specially prepared for the advanced thinkers, evolutionists and "higher criticism" fold of Boston.

"EVOLUTION THEORY FALSE."

"Man was perfect at creation," Billy told his congregation of preachers, "and the theory of evolution is false. The one great lesson that God teaches, is that men are not inclined to obey his laws and that men cannot save themselves.

"When God had determined that men were unable to save themselves he sent his son, Jesus Christ, into the world to become our Saviour."

"To preach one's own ideas and reject the gospel," said the evangelist in an aside, "is twentieth century poppycock."

While Sunday "laid off" for a day his lashing of the brewers' "big horses," the fight to "make Michigan dry" on November 7, was continued by others.

Former-Governor J. Frank Hanley of Indiana, choice of the prohibitionists for Wilson's place at Washington, spoke at Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Albion, Marshall, Battle Creek and Kalamazoo.

In Detroit 2,500 voters marched to City Hall on the last day for registration. This made 5,000 for the week and 11,000 in the special period named by a new board of election commissioners.

The total registration in the city is now about 141,000, including those who have registered from graveyards, public parks, churches, vacant lots and saloons and whose cases are being looked into by the United States District Attorney, the Wayne County public prosecutor and a special detail of seventy-five policemen.

OBJECT TO SLANG.

Letters to the newspapers criticizing Sunday's use of slang at the tabernacle show that the evangelist and his campaign are running true to form.

The advertisement of the campaign manager of the Home Rule League, pro-local option and anti-prohibition, was three columns long in the morning papers today, headed, "Save the Church."

"If," says the ad-writer, "it be blasphemy to express publicly my conviction that some of the churches are being betrayed into political ambush, I have not yet descended to the level of that refined evangelist, the Rev. William Sunday, who went unrebuked after saying within the week:

"The bars of the church are so low now that any old hog can come and root and crawl in. Any old lobster with two or three suits of clothes and a bank account can break into most any church."

Sunday says he isn't taking back a word of it. His name for the Home Rule League, by the way, is home ruin.

ARREST TWO MEN IN LOTTERY RAID

HUGHES AT CHICAGO ON WAY TO NILES

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Charles E. Hughes arrived in Chicago shortly before noon today on the last lap of his final invasion of the West. The candidate remained less than an hour. His train then was shunted to another station and pulled out for Niles, Mich., where the only speech of this afternoon will be made. A fair sized crowd gathered at the union station to greet the party. Mr. Hughes appeared on the back platform and shook many hands but did not speak.

WILSON WORKERS NOT TO USE FRANK

Washington, Oct. 18.—Determined to give the Republicans no cause of criticism of Democratic office-holders' use of official frank, members of President Wilson's cabinet and other government officials, who are on the stump for Mr. Wilson, today issued orders that no copies of their campaign speeches be mailed to newspapers or others under the government frank.

WOMEN IN AIR TO GREET THE PRESIDENT

By International News Service.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—The National Woman's party, which is strenuously opposed to President Wilson's re-election, has arranged a little welcome of its own for the President on his arrival here tomorrow.

High above the President's train, as it crosses the Indiana-Illinois State line, will hover an aeroplane bearing Mrs. Gilson Gardner and Miss Marjorie Stinson. As the train crosses the line the women will drop thousands of printed messages, bearing these words:

"President Wilson! Why do you seek votes FROM women, when you oppose votes FOR women?—National Woman's Party."

Women vote in Illinois but do not in Indiana.

The aeroplane will hover over the train from the State line into Chicago, dropping the printed messages. Miss Stinson will be the aviator.

Leading Democrats completed plans today for the reception of the President, whose coming tomorrow marks high tide in Democracy's campaigning here. Secretary McAdoo is already here.

Three speeches are scheduled for the Chief Executive. Upon his arrival shortly before noon he will go to the Blackstone Hotel for a short rest and then address the members of the Press Club at a luncheon.

At 4 p. m. he will speak at a "Women Only" meeting at the Auditorium, and at night will address thousands of foreign born citizens "Down in the Yards." Governor Dunne will deliver the welcoming address.

PRESIDENT STARTS WEST.

Shadow Lawn, Long Branch, N. J., Oct. 18.—President Wilson, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, Secretary Tumulty and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, his physician, left for Chicago shortly after 11 o'clock. He went to New York, leaving there at 1 o'clock over the New York Central.

FORGOTTEN COMB LEADS TO DIVORCE

Because Mrs. Lillian [illegible] Young of Roxbury left a comb in her room when starting on a vacation in 1914, and her aunt returned for it, her husband, William J. Young, was sued for divorce. Mrs. Young, in her story to Judge Fox in the Superior Court today, said she had prepared for her vacation when she discovered she had forgotten her comb, and when her aunt returned she found Young and a strange woman.

The couple were married in 1912. The case was taken under advisement.

William Seaman told Judge Fox that he desired a legal separation from his wife, who left him after one year of wedded bliss because she had told him that the marriage was a mistake and that she had been decoyed into the contract by her mother. This case was also taken under advisement.

CHELSEA POLICE HARD-LUCK SAILORS

Three Chelsea policemen, who went on a fishing trip in a motor-boat, returned today after an absence of almost twenty-four hours, with a tale of adventure that would delight a writer of sea stories.

The men are George Finn and Frank Twombley of the Chelsea police force and Lieutenant Maurice Finn of the Metropolitan Park Police. They went to sea in the "Scum," Twombley's big power-boat. The "Scum" has not returned. She sank twenty-five yards from Governor's Island, and the men had to swim to shore.

The misfortunes began shortly after the boat left the dock. The men stopped at the gasoline boat near Rowe's wharf, when George Finn fell into the water. After that they journeyed down the harbor, where they fished. The rudder broke and the boat, helpless in the seas, began to sink. She went down when close to the island. George Finn cannot swim, and had hard work to make shore. Men on the island assisted by throwing him a rope.

The men stayed on the island all night and came up this morning in a motor-boat.

Prepare for Big Battle in Ohio

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 18.—During the next two weeks, Ohio will be the national political battle ground. Both Republicans and Democrats have marshalled their forces for a tremendous "political drive." Speakers of national prominence will be pitted against each other in the crucial state.

National headquarters of the Republican and Democratic parties today gave out lists of speakers who will be sent into Ohio between now and the election. Every section of the State will be [illegible].

Senator Charles F. Johnson of Maine, in charge of the Democratic speakers, predicted today that the State would [illegible] Democratic. In answer to this William R. Willcox, the national Republican chairman, gave out a telegram from Charles Hatfield, the Republican chairman of Ohio, declaring [illegible] the success of the Republican ticket is assured.

Among the well-known Democrats who will speak in Ohio are:

Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield, Dudley Field Malone, collector of the port of New York, and Martin H. Glynn, former Governor of New York. Mr. Hughes will speak at Youngstown, Ohio, tomorrow night. On November 3, ex-President William H. Taft will speak at Columbus.

Other Republican speakers include Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, ex-Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, Charles N. Nagel, former Secretary of Labor, Charles S. Deneen, former Governor of Illinois; Charles W. Fairbanks, Republican vice-presidential nominee; Philander C. Knox, former Secretary of State, and former Senator Albert J. BAYONNE STRIKERS VOTE TO STAY OUT

By International News Service.

Bayonne, N. J., Oct. 18.—Standard Oil strikers, whose walk-out has been accompanied by widespread violence and bloodshed, today voted to refuse to return to work under present conditions. The vote was taken at a mass meeting. No further rioting had been reported up to noon.

The federal government has now entered the situation. John A. Smyth and John A. Moffett of the Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation, arrived here today and immediately went to the Standard Oil plant for a conference with the officials.

The strikers are demanding a wage increase, declaring that they cannot exist on their old pay schedule.

FIGHT ROOF SIGNS ON PARK STREET

Hundreds of [illegible] citizens of Boston are signing petitions against offensive buildings on Park street with roof advertising signs.

These petitions are in a number of stores of Boston and have been signed already by more than 500 citizens.

The [illegible] against the signs was begun some time ago by Mrs. James A. Brown of the Boston Common Society, who enlisted the interest of city planning boards who believe in keeping Boston Common and [illegible] sky line clear from commercialism.

There are two objectionable signs on buildings on that street. One of them is bound to go. The other one must go, say the agitators, and the Warren heirs of the property No. 1 Park street will receive in a few days a monster petition asking them to remove the sign and calling attention to the beauty of Park street as a business centre and how much these signs interfere with the sky line.

Mrs. Brown, in speaking of the agitation, said: "Everyone who has the best interests of this Boston Common is heartily in favor of this plan. We want the signs removed, because these signs do nothing but distort the view from the Common and add nothing to the beauty of Park street."

WAR BREAKS OUT AMONG ARAB TRIBES

By International News Service.

Berlin, via Sayville, Oct. 18.—War has broken out among two of the leading tribes of Arabia, as the result of the recent rebellion of hostile Arabs against the Turks. Reports received in Constantinople from Osman, Damask, state that the powerful West Arabian sheikh Abdul Azib Fanes; Emir Seid, has declared war on the former Emir Hussein, on the ground that the latter rebelled against the Sultan. Sheikh Abdul Thalia declared a war footing and sent delegates to Damask repeating assurances of fidelity to the Khalife.

In the Name of American Manhood

We oppose the election of Woodrow Wilson not so much for his beliefs as for his unbeliefs.

We oppose him for the blame which he has put on national responsibility and for the shame he has put upon national honor.

We will not vote for him because every vote cast in his name is an indorsement of the policy which has abandoned our native born to outrage and murder in Mexico.

We do not uphold his candidacy because he has not upheld the principles which insure respect for the American flag and protection to American men and women, whoever they may be, on sea or land.

When we can forget the death and torture of our citizens, the abuse of their wives and daughters, and the atrocities that may not be named in print, we shall have forgotten every thing that can make an American proud of his traditions and his nativity.

We are Democrats but we deny that Woodrow Wilson represents the spirit of Democracy.

We are Progressives but we behold no promise of progress for these United States under a President without the faiths and firmness of our fathers.

We are Republicans but our partisanship is of so little moment compared with Americanhood that we would change parties over night if we could the better serve country and conscience.

Because our pride has been humbled—because our flag has been sullied—because our kinfolk have been deserted—because valorous ideals must be perpetuated for our sons—because we accept the heritage of Lexington and the Alamo—because we live for the code by which our fathers died—we ask you to join with us in the re-generation of Americanism through the election of Charles E. Hughes.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent. In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that, according to Dr. Lewis, there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow it to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start, and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

CHARGE THAT MILK MADE FROM A POWDER IS SOLD IN BOSTON

Attorney-General Attwill is conducting an investigation of big Boston milk dealers charged with manufacturing milk from "milk powder" and selling it as genuine cows' milk, it became known following sensational revelations in an investigation being conducted by the State Board of Health in connection with the milk situation in Boston.

The shortage of milk as a result of the "strike" of farmers throughout New England, who have refused to ship milk into Boston unless the big milk dealers grant them a raise in prices approximating one cent a quart, is said to have caused the manufacture of large quantities of milk from milk powder by the dealers.

AGAINST SMALL DEALERS.

The Attorney-General's action is the latest development in the milk situation in Boston, which is said to be in a condition bordering on serious scandal. The charges involve the Milk Inspection Department of the city of Boston, of which Professor James O. Jordan is the head.

For Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the English to combat this insidious disease. Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dampness affects those suffering from catarrh. In England they treat catarrhal deafness and head noises as a constitutional disease and use an internal remedy for it that is really very efficacious.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they had their hearing restored by this English treatment to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven and eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c and is made as follows:

From your druggist obtain 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are usually remarkably quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.—Advertisement.

An investigation is now under way by the State Health Department, into charges that the Milk Inspection Department is piling up convictions and prosecutions against small milk dealers, while big milk dealers practically enjoy immunity from investigation by milk inspectors, the smaller dealers thereby being "frozen out" of business.

It was learned today that in the probe conducted by the Attorney-General, Herman C. Lithgow of the State Bacteriological Department has already sought to obtain evidence against a large milk depot in Charlestown, where it was charged milk was being manufactured from "milk powder."

Four inspectors from his department descended on the plant, but it was reported that no evidence was found that would establish that "milk powder" was being manufactured into milk at that plant.

Herman C. Lithgow, State bacteriologist, today explained how "milk powder" is manufactured and how it is transformed into milk. He said:

"'Milk powder' is simply milk reduced to a powder by a process that removes the water and butter fats in milk. The usual method is to allow the milk to sprinkle like rain into a circular chimney subjected to great heat. By the time the milk reaches the bottom of the chimney it has turned into powder.

"The removal of the butter fats enables this powder to be kept for months, so that when it is made into milk again it is as fresh as new milk.

"To transform the powder into milk, the manufacturers simply mix it with water in the right proportion and then add cream to take the place of the butter fats removed to prevent the powder from becoming rancid. This is a very simple process and no machinery is necessary, though, of course, machinery would expedite the operation.

"Milk manufactured in this way is practically the same as genuine cow's milk. It is practically impossible to detect milk made in this way, if the milk powder, fats and water are mixed in the right proportions."

"Milk powder" is now being made in New York in large quantities, and big shipments have been made to Europe for the use by armies at the front. It is charged that this milk powder is now being also shipped to Boston for use by milk dealers in their effort to defeat the attempt of the farmers to secure higher prices for their milk.

An echo of the investigation being conducted by the Attorney-General was heard at a hearing by the State Department of Health, on an appeal taken by W. A. Graustein, who conducts the Farmer's Milk Company at No. 11 Gore street, against the revocation of his license to sell milk in Boston, by Professor Jordan of the Boston Milk Inspection Department.

Graustein declared that on September 27, when more than sixty samples were taken from his wagons by milk inspectors in all sections of Boston and suburbs, the milk in the wagons was made from "milk powder." He said he had purchased the "milk" from the firm in Charlestown, because part of his own supply had been cut off from Vermont, and believed it was milk until later. It was this Charlestown firm that has already been visited by Bacteriologist Lithgow and his inspectors, in connection with the Attorney-General's probe.

Graustein made the startling charge before the board that the Boston Milk Inspection Department had been "tipped off" by the concern which sold him the milk so that convictions would be obtained against him on the product they had furnished and he would then be put out of business.

"The head of this concern had threatened me this Summer that he would put me out of business and that he knew a man who could do it."

Professor Jordan of the inspection department has been ordered by the State Health Department to produce at the next meeting all reports and cards of milk taken from dealers as samples during August and September so that they can determine if discrimination is being used against small dealers by Boston milk inspectors.

Assistant Attorney-General Arthur E. Seagrave is conducting the questioning of witnesses at the State Health Department's hearings with a view to determining the basis of the charges of small dealers that they are being prosecuted.

Graustein's license was revoked by the city milk inspection department on September 8. The State Health Department is his last court of appeal against the revocation of his license under the law.

Today is the last day for registration for the coming election.

PLEA OF MINISTERS REOPENS SALOONS

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Mayor Thompson testified that he was guided largely by the recommendation of Chief of Police Charles C. Healey in revoking and in restoring saloon licenses.

Restorations, however, he said, were usually backed up by the pleas of "reputable citizens, influential business men and even ministers."

SEES 100-MILLION SAVING BY ROADS

Washington, Oct. 18.—A saving of $100,000,000 annually in handling the transportation of the country is the sum that Frank Trumbull predicted would result if the railroads of the country could have Federal supervision altogether and Federal incorporation.

Mr. Trumbull, who is chairman of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad and chairman of the advisory committee of the railroad executives, spoke at the meeting of the American Association of Passenger Traffic Officers.

He was discussing the policy which the railroads would put up to the joint commission of Congress which has been authorized to investigate the interstate commerce laws and the general railroad situation.

"It is the hope of the railroad managers that out of this investigation by Congress will come a plan for co-ordinating and simplifying our system of regulating transportation," said Mr. Trumbull. "Probably $100,000,000 is going over the dam every year as a result of the lack of co-ordination in present methods of handling this important matter. Conflicting regulation by the Federal government and the States is responsible for the loss.

"Issues of railroad securities also should be regulated exclusively by the Federal government and not by the States. At present nineteen States are regulating these issues. Transportation cannot be carried on successfully without credit, and we can not get the credit if regulation is to be carried on as at present."

TREVINO REFUSES TO FIGHT VILLA

Washington, Oct. 18.—Reports reached Washington today that General Trevino, commanding the Carranza garrison at Chihuahua, had failed to accept Francisco Villa's challenge to fight. They caused renewed speculation as to whether Trevino still supported the cause of the de facto government.

Trevino is one of Carranza's highest class generals. It has been rumored many times that he would be one of the leaders in the new revolt being organized in northern Mexico.

NAILS ACT AS FLINT AND CAUSE A FIRE

Lewiston, Me., Oct. 18.—Nails in the heels of a workman's shoes, coming in contact with nails in the floor of the L. O. Mercier dry cleaning plant made a spark which caused a $4,000 fire. The sparks alighted in a puddle of gasoline beneath a tank of the fluid, and in an instant one side of the room was in flames.

PLENTY OF WILSON MONEY AT 8 TO 10

New York, Oct. 18.—Between $20,000 and $25,000 was bet by Wall Street Curb Commissioners, at odds ranging from 7 to 10 to 8 to 10, that Woodrow Wilson will be re-elected. There was a little more Hughes money than has been the case recently, but his backers were unwilling to give longer odds than those quoted. There was no need for them to do so, as more Wilson than Hughes money was in sight.

Of the amount placed on Wilson, Edward McQuade bet the greater portion at 8 to 10.

Odds quoted on the Curb were 10 to 7 on Hughes to carry New Jersey, 1 to 4 that Wilson will carry Connecticut and even money between the two candidates in Ohio. Only a short time ago bets were made at 6 to 1 that Hughes would carry the latter State.

The betting odds on Hughes took a sudden drop at Fred Schumm's cafe, No. 395 Fulton street, Brooklyn.

From 7 to 5, at which a number of wagers had been booked, they slumped abruptly to 10 to 9. No bets were made at the new figure, the Wilson backers holding out for odds of not less than 10 to 8.

Earlier in the day a member of the Produce Exchange had gone over to Schumm's with $2,800 which he had laid on Hughes against $2,000 of Wilson money.

SMALL PROMISES TO BE MODEL PRISONER

Thomaston, Me., Oct. 18.—Guy Small of Otter Creek, sentenced to State Prison for life for the murder of Mrs. Emma Turnbumm, was brought here by Deputy Sheriff Warden A. G. Bucklin. "O, sure," was the answer he made to interviewers, who asked him if his confession had been reported correctly, if he was sorry for his crime and if he intended to be a model prisoner.

RECLUSE BEQUEATHS $119,800 TO NIECE

New York, Oct. 18.—Miss Edith Kitching, niece of the late Francis F. Ripley, the aged Brooklyn recluse, who at first declared she would not touch one cent of the wealth left by her uncle because it was "tainted," will receive $119,800 of the estate, according to a supplementary appraisal filed. The gross estate amounted to $208,108.

LADD'S COLLECTION SELLS FOR $225,000

San Francisco, Oct. 18.—The famous William Ladd's collection of prints and mezzo tints, covering the entire field of print-making from the fifteenth century to the present day, has been sold. A wealthy resident of Minneapolis, Minn., whose name is withheld, paid $225,000 for the collection, it was announced today. The collection will be presented by the purchaser to the Minneapolis Museum of Fine Arts.

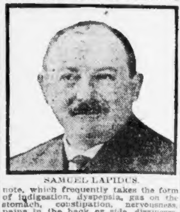
CHARLESTOWN MAN HAD INDIGESTION

Main Street Grocer Relates How Plant Juice Has Brought Him Back to Health.

Nature, like an army when attacked, has warnings and signals which should never go unheeded. When the stomach, liver or kidneys suffer slight derangements, they send out their hurry call to be careful. Each has its warning note, which frequently takes the form of indigestion, dyspepsia, gas on the stomach, constipation, nervousness, pains in the back or side, dizziness, sleeplessness, etc. Nine out of ten people ignore these first symptoms and wait until serious illness has laid them low before they seek relief.



SAMUEL LAPIDUS.

Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, assists Nature, and will bring relief in practically all cases of a deranged stomach, liver or kidneys. Thousands of local people are testifying to the benefits they have received, after they had practically given up all hope of permanent relief.

One of the latest signed testimonials is that of Mr. Samuel Lapidus, who resides at No. 642 Main street, Charlestown, and has been in the grocery business in that city for many years, having hosts of friends and acquaintances. He stated:

"For over ten years I have been greatly troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia. All the food I ate would ferment in my stomach and cause gas to form; I had terrible pains after eating, could not sleep at night and got very weak and miserable. I had headaches, and pains all over my body. I heard so much about Plant Juice curing people of stomach trouble that I got a bottle. After taking a few doses I felt so much relieved that I have continued to take it, and now can truthfully say that I feel like a new man; I sleep well and can eat anything I want without the slightest distress. I certainly can recommend this wonderful medicine, for it brought me back my health."

The Plant Juice Man is at The Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Newport Inquiry on 'Neutrality'

By International News Service.

Newport, Oct. 18.—The United States Treasury Department is conducting a rigid investigation into every phase of the visit of the German submarine U-53 to this port on October 7. It is understood that the inquiry is being made at the request of the British embassy at Washington.

For several days representatives of the neutrality branch of the department have been collecting the statements of all those who are known to have boarded the U-53 during her three-hour stay in the harbor. Among those interviewed by the officials were Dr. and Mrs. Charles D. Easton, Commodore and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, and the Newport residents who was reported to have received a visit from the commander of the submarine.

'DREAM CITY' FOR PLYMOUTH

The erection of "A Dream City," devoted to religion, philosophy and art, was proposed by Ralph A. Cram, architect and author, for the Pilgrim tercentenary celebration at Plymouth, in an address before the American Society of Colonial Families. He is opposed to any industrializing celebration.

Professor Cram stated his idea of "A Dream City" as "half Venice, half Bruges"—a city in which there would be a perfect expression of all the arts.

Among the features mentioned by him were: Theatres of all the different races of Europe, a loan exhibition of all the best pictures and of the best work in painting and sculpture; a great courtyard as big as the Piazza San Marco in Venice, where societies could meet; little streets of shops where anything really beautiful would be sold; canals threaded by gondolas and motor boats; three or four churches, including a Jewish synagogue, representing beautiful architecture at different periods in the past and furnishing the best ecclesiastical music; cafes, Olympic games, races on the river and pageants.

DRINK WATER TO AVOID SICKNESS SAYS AUTHORITY

Glass of hot water before breakfast daily keeps the doctor away.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides with results that are of untold blessing to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphated hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—Advertisement.

CUTICURA HEALS ALL SKIN TROUBLES

That Itch, Burn and Disfigure. Why Not Try It Now?

How grateful the relief, how refreshing the sleep that follows the first hot bath with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment in itching, burning eczemas, rashes and pimples. Complete healment in most cases is speedy and permanent.

"My trouble began by my forehead breaking out very badly and also my neck and arms. The general appearance was pimples and a rash and my skin was red and sore. It would burn and itch dreadfully and I would scratch and my face was all the worse. It was so bad at times that at nights I could not sleep, and the disfigurement made me feel that I did not want to be seen. The trouble lasted two years.

"I tried an ointment but with no success. Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Rachel M. Buron, Stowe, Vermont. Feb. 3, 1916.

EDITH DEACON WILL WED NEW YORKER

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Deacon to Henry G. Gray, son of the late Judge John C. Gray, is received with much interest by Boston society. Miss Deacon has been prominent in Boston and Newport and has lately been engaged in relief work at the French front.

The engagement of Miss Edith Deacon of Boston to Henry G. Gray of New York is the latest announcement attracting attention to the prominent Boston and Newport society girl, whose career has varied from gay to grave.

At different periods since her debut she has alternated between being the pet of the Newport social coterie, the typical out-of-door girl, and the serious-minded, thoughtful young woman whose latest work has been for the American Ambulance Corps in France for French wounded.

Miss Deacon has some of the bluest blood of the old Bay State in her veins. She is the daughter of Mrs. Edward Parker Deacon and a granddaughter of the late Admiral Baldwin of Newport.

Her fiance is the son of the late Judge John Clinton Gray of the Court of Appeals. He was graduated from Harvard, class of '97, and is a member of the law firm of Zabriskie, Murray, Sage & Kerr. He is also a prominent club man.

LEADER IN SOCIAL LIFE.

Miss Deacon has been a prominent figure in the social life of Boston and the Newport colony, being one of the three Deacon sisters, the "Three Graces," known for their beauty and cleverness. Miss Deacon is regarded as a woman of unusual beauty. She is tall, with a wealth of black hair and a superb figure. She is very accomplished, sings well, plays the piano in a manner suggesting the professional, rides, swims, drives and is especially keen over out-of-door sports.

Her name became especially prominent several years ago when her engagement to George Lee Peabody, the Boston millionaire, was announced. That that engagement did not culminate in the happy marriage that was predicted by their friends was due to an unfortunate chain of circumstances, resulting in the death of Mr. Peabody. Miss Deacon's wedding date was twice set, only to be postponed because of the serious illness of the groom-to-be.

DEVOTED TO PEABODY.

His final illness occurred in the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, where Miss Deacon remained with him almost constantly. Her devotion to the unfortunate man was recognized by the members of the Peabody family, who settled upon her an annuity sufficient to make her entirely independent. In so doing the family claimed that it only carried out the intention of Mr. Peabody, who had planned to settle his entire fortune upon the girl.

Since the closing of this unhappy chapter of her life Miss Deacon has lived a good deal abroad, making only short visits to this country. Where once she had been looked upon as the lively girl, ready for everything that was fun, she became a quiet young woman. Since then she has devoted much of her income, and practically all of her time, to doing good for others and relieving the conditions of many unfortunates.

ENGAGED IN RELIEF WORK.

From the beginning of the war she has been recognized as one of the foremost American women in relief work in France. Much of the time she was reported on the firing line; and her indefatigable labors finally told so much upon her that she was obliged to return to this country late last year for rest.

Her subsequent entrance into society again was inevitable as invitations were showered upon her. She was one of the attendants at the marriage of Miss Dorothy Jordan and Munroe Douglas Robinson, and since that time has gradually resumed the social activities that were hers before her retirement.

No date has as yet been mentioned for the marriage of Miss Deacon and Mr. Gray, but her friends believe that the announcement of the engagement presages a future that will entirely obliterate the unhappy incidents of the past years.

Special Prayer for President Dropped by Episcopalians

St. Louis, Oct. 18.—The House of Deputies of the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church has voted to eliminate the special prayers for the President of the United States from the morning and evening prayer service, and to substitute for them a prayer for the safety and preservation of the nation.

The present morning prayer asks for the President the boon, "in health and prosperity long to live," and that he finally may attain everlasting joy and felicity.

The new prayer, while asking that the President "and all others in authority," be given "the wisdom and strength to know and to do Thy will," makes no reference to long life, health, prosperity or eternal felicity. The House also voted, despite vigorous protests, to omit the words, "The Governor of this State," from the evening prayer, it being argued that "all others in authority" included the Governors.

The change adopted at the suggestion of the Commission on Prayer Book must be approved by the House of Bishops, and by the next general convention, before it can become effective.

Rush of Divorce Cases in Paris

Paris, Oct. 1.—Divorce lawyers are beginning to complain of a too great rush of clients, for appeals for divorce have been rapidly increasing, so much so that the Seine Tribunal has had to appoint four instead of three weekly "audiences de conciliation," which are the more or less futile attempts to reconcile, and mark the beginning of a divorce suit.

From August, 1914, to the following January—that is, for the first six months of the war—there was a total lack of divorce proceedings, domestic quarrels having evidently been put aside for the time being in virtue of the "sacred union."

During the following year, 1915, as courts began again to do business, but not "as usual," for two weekly sittings sufficed for reconciling the irreconcilables. But at the beginning of this year, 1916, things became entirely normal, and the three weekly sessions of ante-bellum days were resumed. But now the tide is setting in so strong that it bids fair to be a record season for divorce suits, the average being 240 a week, or nearly 1,000 a month.

This great and sudden increase is largely due to the new regulation, according to which a mobilized party may be represented by a proxy at the "audience de reconciliation."

MUNSTERBERG AND HOCKING DECLARE A TRUCE

Professor Hugo Munsterberg, the Harvard psychologist, has warned Professor William E. Hocking, his departmental colleague, that he refuses to continue discussion in newspaper columns of the heated controversy between him and Professor Hocking regarding the German cause and American citizenship.

When shown Professor Hocking's reply to his letter of Monday Professor Munsterberg said:

"I wrote Professor Hocking yesterday morning that under no circumstance would I again answer publicly any questions directed at me by him through the press, neither would I enter into any controversy in print with him or any other member of the Harvard faculty.

WILL KEEP SILENT.

"Professor Hocking must have received my note before writing his letter. The press is no place for members of a university to discuss their differences. The only reason that I made answer to Professor Hocking's first communication was that he made a pointblank request of me to do so. I have nothing further to say."

Professor Hocking's letter follows in part:

"My purpose in writing my open letter was not to raise remote personal or historical issues, but to bring out the truth regarding your relations to the German government and your political methods in this country. Your intercepted letter to the Chancellor has given substance to certain widespread beliefs on these points, of which you are not unaware, and which should at this time be either confirmed or dispelled. My inquiry was not made for my own personal satisfaction primarily but because of this widespread belief and concern; hence it necessarily took a public form and not that of the personal interview which you propose as sufficient.

"Your lengthy reference to the history of your connection with Harvard University is beside the point. It would indeed be presumptuous for me to discuss with you the merits of that history; there are many others more competent to speak of that than I. I may only say what must be clear to everyone, that the welcome which was yours as a scientist had certainly nothing to do with your extra-academic political activities, which are the only matters with which I am now concerned.

SPEAKS FOR ALLIES.

"My inquiries on this score can in no sense be construed as an attack upon the German cause. They have no relation to the issues of the war. It was not reserved to this particular letter to the Chancellor to apprise us that you favor the German cause. What there appeared for the first time was that you were endeavoring to promote that cause by indirect methods, and by undermining American citizenship.

"It was your methods that were in promoting that cause by indirect methods which that letter indicated would be repudiated by most German-Americans as well as by others. You say that I have spoken in favor of the allies, and that is true.

"As to the cause of peace, you suggest in your reply that this is an idea of your own which you are urging upon the Chancellor and the German people, not they upon you. But if there is anything clear in your letter to the Chancellor, it is that the desire for peace in Germany's interest is a [illegible] firmly established German policy, wholly understood between you. In so many words you speak of European peace as 'the ultimate goal of this great movement,' namely 'German policy.' If I judge that German policy is made in Germany I do not stray far from the paths of simple inference.

ASKS A QUESTION.

"I should be glad to believe the statement of your reply to the effect that you have published nothing anonymously. The supposition that you had done so was, of course, no original theory of mine, but was gathered from your own statement. These were your reported words: 'and so my main work consists in continuously writing new essays and articles in favor of the preservation of peace, and of Wilson's reputation as a mediator; all this peace material naturally appears without any name.' These words do not indicate a mere plan for the future; they indicate a present and continued performance. Which words are true?

"There remains in all these questions the possibility that the translation of that letter is at fault. It may be that the entire burden of my inquiry would disappear if the letter were correctly rendered. And there is one simple way in which all such doubts can be set at rest. You have only to disclose the garbled version by the original German words. Will you do this?

"In closing let me call attention once more to the fact that my letter, as a letter of inquiry, was one which would naturally have been welcomed by one whose hands were clear. You, however, seem to have regarded it as an injury, and have so answered as to [illegible], not to meet the issue. Further, you have said that the truth would be painful for America, and that to save our honor you will suppress its details. If I at all know the psychology of my fellow-countrymen, I can assure you that words like these beget the opposite of confidence.

REQUESTS EXPLANATION.

"We prize as we [illegible] willingness to know, and [illegible] they are. Will you not [illegible] that disposition half way? Will you not make plain to us the nature of your relation to the German government, to what degree you are an official representative, and what activities you carry on in its behalf?

"I repeat that these are not my questions alone; I am merely expressing a serious [illegible] which is felt by many. If you do not wish to answer these questions [illegible], I certainly have no desire to carry the discussion further. This must be my last letter. Sincerely yours,

"WILLIAM ERNEST HOCKING.

"P. S.—A personal detail is necessary to remove some misapprehension. In referring to your presence as a guest in my house, you did not make entirely clear that the occasion was a gathering of the Department of Philosophy and you were cordially invited by me as acting chairman of the department, and that this meeting was four days prior to the publication of the intercepted letter."

CHELSEA MAN KILLED BY 'SLAVERS'

Joseph Massarella, the Chelsea man who was stabbed to death by an unknown assailant at the North Ferry, East Boston, is believed to have been the victim of the white slave system that caused the murder of Cosimo Di Nuccio, the Providence cafe owner, on October 10.

According to Providence police inspectors Massarella, who lived at No. 126 Congress street, Chelsea, has paid the penalty of an "informer" with his life.

Following the murder of Di Nuccio Inspectors John Harron and James Ahearn of the Providence department, raided the house at No. 116 Shurtleff street, Chelsea, with Chelsea police officers, in a hunt for the murderers. Massarella is said to have been in the house at the time.

GRILLED BY POLICE.

He was subjected to a severe grilling by the police and it is claimed that he informed them that Tom Russi, one of the men suspected of the Providence murder and who is said to be seriously wounded in the hip, was secreted in the house where he had been found.

Another raid was made on the premises but the wounded gunman had been spirited away. He is now believed to be hiding somewhere in East Boston.

After the grilling, Massarella told the police that he would have to pay for "squealing."

On Monday night, with his wife and several relatives, he attended a dance in an East Boston hall. He had an argument, the nature of which is unknown, with another man. A settlement was apparently made, until the party reached the North Ferry, where hostilities were renewed. Without a word of warning, his assailant suddenly whipped a weapon from his pocket and stabbed him through the heart. The murderer made good his escape as all witnesses were too dazed at his boldness to attempt to stop him. The police have obtained a good description of him, however, and a search is being made for his apprehension.

GIRL FEARS SYSTEM.

The three gunmen, charged with the Providence murder, are still at large. The Providence officials are of the opinion that a woman giving the name of "Rose Hazleton," a former waitress in the cafe of the murdered man, and held pending an investigation, can throw much light on the whereabouts of the murderers.

She has admitted to the police that she knows the men who are wanted, but she contends that she only knows them from seeing them in the cafe and that she has no knowledge of their dealings with the dead man.

Every offer of protection has been made to her, but she persists in maintaining silence. It is the belief of the police that she fears the system, which has already claimed two victims.

As a result of the operations of the system in Providence, orders have been issued to the police to clear the streets of all undesirable characters. Corner loafers will be arrested on the merest pretence in order that a charge might be preferred against them. Every suspicious appearing girl, who shows no visible means of support, will also be arrested.

TO CLEAR UNDERWORLD.

The arrest of several habitues of the underworld on vagrancy charges and other minor charges has created a stir in the district where the alleged slavers formerly congregated.

The revocation of the license of a poolroom on Aborn street by the police commissioners is said to be a severe blow to the system. The place was conducted by Guiseppe Pescione, who is charged with being an accessory to the murder and who is held in jail on account of his inability to furnish $5,000 bail for trial on October 27.

After his arrest, the poolroom was conducted by a character, known only as "Brooklyn," who has been arrested on a charge of vagrancy.

It is said that several cafe owners have made a hurried departure from the city since the Di Nuccio murder. Three are reported to have closed their doors and their present whereabouts is a mystery.

Police headquarters is believed to be closely watched by "cappers," who are keeping the system closely informed on what is going on. The officials find it extremely difficult to draw any information from any of the persons that have been brought to headquarters, because all express a fear of death from the system.

Washington, Oct. 18.—United States Public Health Service announces that during the infantile paralysis epidemic, from July 1 to September 25, there was a total of 23,262 cases in the United States. The number of deaths has not been reported.

TO RENEW LABOR CONGRESS PLEA

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor today took up the question of renewing at an early date a proposal to the British Trade Union Council for a world's labor congress, at the time and place of the peace council at the end of the war. Members of the council were practically unanimous in the opinion that the executive council would again urge the presentation of such a proposal at the next annual convention of the Federation, which begins in Baltimore on November 13.

The suggestion, first presented to the British labor organization at Birmingham, England, last August, was rejected, on the ground that the state of public feeling in the British empire then would not countenance peace overtures of any sort.

Strong efforts will be made to have the federation demand a national eight-hour workday law.

WAIVE LAW ON NAVY YARD HELP

On account of the increased demand for workmen at the Charlestown navy yard authority has been received from Washington to increase the force at the yard. The law that prevents any increase in the working force at a navy yard sixty days prior to a Congressional election was waived to allow the force to be swelled.

TECH ONE-BOAT 'NAVY' WRECKED

Technology's one-boat navy has been destroyed. The white barge which carried Technology men and graduates during the celebration last June beat herself to death on the rock-bound coast of the Charles River Basin during yesterday's high wind.

The junk man will get the navy now at so much per ton.

The $10,000 beauty proved herself a mighty poor rough-weather craft. Little of her former glory remains today. The beaver, symbol of industry, which adorned the bowsprit, as emblematic of the Tech spirit, was broken away in the fight with the elements. The mermaids, mermen and the other figures are also damaged.

About the only decoration that remains in all its glory is the large statue of a young woman of classic lines, which adorned the superstructure deck.

She proved to be something more than a fair-weather girl, and stands bravely aloft today, even if the craft beneath her feet is sinking.

The Bucentaur flourished for a day. After the celebration various plans were suggested for its life. In the meantime she remained at her moorings on the Cambridge side of the river, the admiration of thousands of Summer visitors' eyes.

A few days ago the barge was sold to William O'Leary of Cambridge, who planned to use her for a houseboat. That was before the high wind tore her from her moorings, and dashed her a mile down river, a helpless craft against the gale.

The most serious injury of all is a large hole below the waterline. Wreckers say the barge is no longer seaworthy, even for the peaceful voyages of a houseboat.

Junk is all she is good for now, they say, and junk she will be in a few days.

HARVARD PLANS WIRELESS CHESS

An interesting innovation is to be inaugurated at Harvard this year, when an attempt will be made to play a chess tournament by wireless. The matches will be carried on under the supervision of the Amateur Wireless Association of America. The varsity schedule at Harvard follows: October 27, Cornell; November 3, Virginia; November 10, Princeton; November 17, Brown; November 24, Yale at New Haven; December, Tech. The Yale match is the only one away from Cambridge.

EXETER STUDENT WINS COURT CASE

Haverhill, Oct. 18.—W. Marsh Boal, of West Virginia, a student at Phillips Exeter Academy, who conducted his own case in court, was discharged in district court here today, where he was charged with violating the automobile traffic laws. W. J. Murphy, a traffic policeman, stationed at White's Corner, one of the busiest corners of the city, said that Boal paid no attention to his signal. Professor George B. Rogers of the academy testified to Boal's excellent record.

Curiosity is the keynote and title of the latest episode of Beatrice Fairfax, the superb newspaper series. Certainly every woman has heard of and wants to see Miss Fairfax whose "Advice to the Lovelorn" is printed every day in the most important newspapers of the United States.

In "Curiosity" it is the attempt of a young wife to pry into the business of her husband, a secret service man, that causes all the trouble. It is always the distress of some troubled lover that provides the adventures for Jimmy Barton, the reporter, and Miss Fairfax.

How to Prevent Acid Stomach And Food Fermentation

BY A NEW YORK PHYSICIAN.

"My experience in the treatment of stomach diseases has forced me to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is excessive acid in the stomach, aggravated by food fermentation. Hyperacidity irritates the delicate lining of the stomach abnormally, causing that full, bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all cases—and they comprise a great majority of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisurated magnesia, which is the most effective antacid and food corrective I have ever found. The excess acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for bisurated magnesia which is the form of magnesia especially recommended for acid stomach conditions.

U. S. TO AVOID CHINA CRISIS

Washington, Oct. 18.—The State Department today ordered an informal investigation of conditions surrounding recent protests by the Japanese and Russian governments in China against activities of American capital in railroad and canal construction in Northern China.

The United States Legation at Pekin was asked to forward a report on the Russian and Japanese protests without making any formal communication to the Chinese government, or taking any official step in the matter.

The State Department is determined to avoid all possibility of precipitating a Far Eastern crisis before the end of the war, no matter what conditions may arise in China.

The investigation ordered today contemplates merely the collection of information to provide a complete record for diplomatic use when these questions are raised, and it does not forecast any immediate diplomatic action in support of American investors in China.

HORSES ARE BEST FOR BELLOWS FALLS

Bellows Falls, Vt., Oct. 18.—This town is yet to be convinced of the value of the automobile as compared to the horse. A meeting of the citizens was held to consider an offer of F. H. Babbit, a local paper manufacturer, to contribute $500 toward the purchase of a new automobile fire truck.

The chief objectors to the proposed addition to the department declared that horses were reliable and automobiles were not. The objection carried and the offer was rejected.

AERO CLUB HEAD FOR DEFENCE PLAN

HOLIDAYS FATAL TO WIFE'S DREAM

Holidays were fatal to the romance of Eleanor L. Miller, wife of Thomas E. Miller, whose divorce libel came up today in the divorce session of the Superior Court.

Mrs. Miller testified that love's young dream lasted only from September, 1914, to July, 1915. On April 19 the husband took occasion to celebrate the holiday by giving his wife a beating, while she was visiting with her people. On June 17, Bunker Hill day, he did the same thing, threatening her with a revolver at the same time.

The separation came early in July. Previous to the Patriots' Day episode, she testified that her husband beat her and locked her in a room an entire day because she failed to find the work that he sent her out to obtain. Judge Fox granted a decree nisi.

One day of marital bliss was sufficient to give Henry A. Smith such a distaste for work that he gave up his job the next morning. Such was the testimony of Mary [illegible] Smith, a girlish appearing wife.

Mary stood the [illegible] of three weeks in which her bridegroom did no work. At the end of that time Henry left his bride and she went home to mother.

POLICEMAN TELLS COURT OF 'SMASHING' SOKOL

warrant application, but that the case was postponed on account of Sokol being in the hospital.

WILLING TO TAKE UP CHARGES.

Judge Brackett said he was assigned to hear the charges against Sokol. Major Walsh said he was willing, if the Court deemed it necessary, to take up the complaint against the two patrolmen after the charges against Sokol had been heard.

Judge Brackett's special session of the city court was crowded. Sokol had about a dozen witnesses in defence, the police had as many.

Sokol leaned forward in his chair, his chin cupped in one hand. He coughed frequently. A scar about one and one-half inches long showed on his right cheek. To spectators the man appeared weak.

Patrolman Morgan testified as follows:

"I went with Officer Donnelly to Sokol's house the day of the arrest. We went up to the front door, which was open, and walked upstairs. We knocked on the Sokol door and our rap was answered by Mrs. Nellie Donnelly, who had been employed for nine years in the Sokol family.

On seeing us Mrs. Donnelly backed into the kitchen and stopped in the middle of the room and asked us what we wanted. We said that we wanted to see David Sokol.

Mrs. Donnelly then went into a bedroom and called Sokol, who was resting on a couch. Sokol came out of the room, followed by his wife.

"Patrolman Donnelly told him that he had a warrant for his arrest, charging him with assault on a woman. I told him that he had better come down to the station house with us and have his wife get bail for him.

FOLLOWED HIM.

"Sokol turned around and walked into the bedroom. He looked around the room and then went into the parlor. He was out of my sight for about fifteen seconds. Thinking that he might leave the house by another door I followed him into the room. Donnelly came after me.

"Patrolman Donnelly then asked him if he was going to the station house with us. He replied, 'I wouldn't go to Station 3. To h— with that police station. I wouldn't go if you sent Captain Peabody and his squad here at the house for me.'

"Officer Donnelly then went to take Sokol, and before he laid his hand on him Sokol threw himself on the bed. As Donnelly reached to get him up Sokol kicked Donnelly with his right foot."

Morgan then testified regarding Hyman Sokol, the son, saying:

"Hyman Sokol advanced toward me with a bread knife?"

Morgan was asked if Hyman came at him at the start. He went on:

"No, no. I had Sokol, the father, on the floor then. Mrs. Sokol had been on my back. I tussled and finally succeeded in throwing her off. At that time I had my eye on Hyman Sokol. I saw him squeezing through these women who were about with the bread knife in his hand. He was just like a wild man, very wild looking.

CALLED FOR WAGON.

"About that time one of the officers went over to the window and called for a patrol wagon to be sent. While he was at the window young Sokol came in again with the knife. Donnelly said: 'Look out!' Hyman said: 'I'll kill you, you big —— ——' and made a lunge at me. With that old Sokol tried to get up and Donnelly made a kick at him. Donnelly at that time was almost powerless and could barely move.

"About that time Mr. Lynch, the probation officer, came into the room and assisted me in putting Sokol on his feet. The wagon came and we got him in it. He sat on the seat with his hands to his face. Then he looked at his hands and saw blood on them and began saying, 'Oy, oy, oy!' Then he looked again and fell on the wagon floor. There were no blows struck in the wagon."

Morgan was cross-examined by Scharton.

Q.—Did you have any trouble with Sokol prior to that time in the course of which Sokol made a complaint to the police commissioner about you? A.—Yes.

WALSH OBJECTS.

Scharton asked if Sokol complained of excessive force used on him in a previous arrest. Major Walsh objected on the ground that this was not relevant to the case when there was no record of a finding of the commissioner on such complaint. Objection sustained.

Q.—The mere fact that if any person had put in a complaint against you would not have biased you in making an arrest if a warrant was issued for that person later on? A.—No, not in a case of that kind.

Q.—So that you considered Sokol beneath your notice and would have paid no attention to it?

Major Walsh objected to the "beneath your notice" part of the question, saying that Morgan never used those words, and that they were an invention of Scharton. Ruled out.

COULD DEMAND IT.

Q.—So that Sokol would receive protection from you in the event of you making an arrest? A.—Mr. Sokol could demand just as much police protection from me as I would give to any other citizen.

Q.—You have answered previously a question to the effect that the fact that Mr. Sokol had made a complaint against you wouldn't have any effect on you in making the arrest? A.—Not that an exact complaint—Objection raised by Attorney Walsh, answer yes or no. Objections sustained.

Q.—Now, then, you did not consider Mr. Sokol in the sense of a citizen whose complaint was of much value? A.—No.

Q.—And Sokol was not the type of citizen whose complaint against you would be of value? Objections by Attorney Walsh on the grounds that the Police Commissioner had not passed on the complaint. Objections sustained.

Q.—You didn't consider him very much of a citizen. A.—He wasn't very much of a citizen.

Attorney Scharton here caused a little pleasantry by injecting the statement that Morgan would not have treated him (Scharton) the way he did Sokol in making the arrest.

Officer Morgan—No, I wouldn't.

Scharton—You bet you wouldn't.

Attorney Walsh—He possibly would be afraid of your pugilistic ways.

Scharton—He wouldn't get away with it.

Q.—And now we come up to the time of the arrest and assault; where did he live at the time of the assault? A.—In the Stanford street house.

Q.—On your route? A.—No, mine is on the opposite side. It was on Officer Donnelley's route.

Q.—Who detailed you to go to the house? A.—Sergeant Brooks.

Q.—Didn't you say that when you went there there wouldn't be any trouble? A.—There was a possibility of there being trouble.

Q.—So Sergeant Brooks saw fit to detail you as a guard for the warrant to be served on Sokol? A.—Yes.

Q.—Having in mind Donnelley's statement to Sokol, had you realized before then that the serving of the warrant for the offence charged would have led to some trouble? A.—Sure.

Q.—You had not expected he would put up any fuss about arrest, had you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why were you sent to make the arrest? A.—It is customary to send two officers with a warrant to make an arrest.

Major Walsh—"You don't criticise him for going, do you?"

Scharton—"O, no, no, not at all."

Q.—I suppose you were taught by your superior officers how to make an arrest? A.—I was, some years ago.

Q.—Had you forgotten some of its details when you went after Sokol? A.—No, I had them in mind.

QUESTION OF STICK.

Q.—So you had in mind that a stick was to be used? A.—No.

Q.—But you had in mind you were going to use a stick? A.—No.

Q.—Well, you had in mind that you would use a stick as a very last extreme? A.—O, no, we use a gun as a very last resort.

Q.—What is your rule about using a stick?

Major Walsh objected to the "stick rule" question. Scharton said he wished to show there was a rule and was allowed to proceed.

Q.—When you first went on as reserve officer you were instructed by your superiors, weren't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—About the use of a stick? A.—We have a book for that.

Major Walsh objected again. Scharton put to Morgan a long question on the rule for using a stick, when he was justified in using it, whether he should use it in an extremity or not at all.

Morgan said:

"Your question is so long I can't answer yes or no, but I'd like to make myself clear in that point. Scharton demanded a flat answer. Judge Brackett ruled Morgan could not give his "opinion" in cross-examination.

Scharton put it this way: "Were you ever instructed either as a reserve man or patrolman on the use of a stick?"

A.—Well, there are instructions, but none covering any particular case.

Q.—Did you ever hear of Commissioner O'Meara sending out instructions as to when and how to use a club? A.—Yes.

Q.—After you saw that Sokol kicked Officer Donnelly, as you said you did, had you made up your mind to take him out, dead or alive? A.—Yes, after Sokol refused to go.

Q.—Did you use all your force when you hit Sokol? A.—I used all the force I had. I intended to put him out with the first blow.

A.—After Sokol's three ribs were broken you still believed you should use force on a man lying unconscious on the floor? A.—He was not unconscious. He was kicking his feet and I felt it was necessary to use force.

Q.—Did you hear anyone scream, "Don't kill him, Morgan!" A.—I didn't hear anyone scream that remark, but I did see women hollering and screaming out the window and in the room.

Patrolman Owen J. Donnelly, who made the arrest with Morgan, corroborated Morgan's description of the arrest and its developments. He was briefly cross-examined by Scharton.

Dr. J. F. du Vally, police surgeon, who examined Sokol at the Joy street station, testified:

"I found that Sokol had three ribs broken on the right side and abrasions on the head."

Cross-examination by Scharton:

Q.—The breaking of the ribs might have been caused by a kick? A.—No, sir.

A. — Wouldn't a kick break your ribs? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You must have tough ribs, doctor. (Loud laughter.)

Q.—You say the man must have fallen on the edge of the bed to break his ribs. A.—That was perfectly logical.

Q.—"If a man lying prostrate on the floor was kicked with sufficient force would that break his ribs?" A.—That would cause contusions.

The witness testified that it was half an hour after that Sokol arrived at the station that he, the doctor, got there. His conclusions were that Sokol had fallen against the side of the bed.

He also testified that he wasn't an expert, but at one time he did qualify as such.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 18.—From present indications, it looks as though Montana will be the first State in the Union to send a feminine Representative to Congress.

The woman is Miss Jeanette Rankin, president of the Montana Woman Suffrage Association. She has won the Congressional nomination from seven men by a plurality of more than 7,000 votes.

ROCHETTE, THE $40,000,000 SWINDLER, CAUGHT IN PARIS

By International News Service.

Paris, Oct. 18.—Henri Rochette, founder of the Franco-Spanish Bank and various other financial organizations in Paris, and whose embezzlement of nearly $40,000,000 led to a French political scandal and indirectly to the murder of Gaston Calmette, has been arrested.

The arrest of Rochette ends a chase of a number of years that the police of Paris have carried to every corner of the globe.

LIFE STORY READS LIKE NOVEL.

The story of Rochette's life reads like a novel. Starting as a brush boy in a barber shop, he became a waiter in a small provincial restaurant. He inherited $1,000 and came to Paris, where by fortunate investments he increased his fortunes until he was the head of the Franco-Spanish Bank with sixty branches on the continent and in Latin-American countries and numerous mining and industrial companies. He was recognized as a financial power in France.

The Bourse was electrified on March 7, 1908, to know that Rochette had embezzled almost $40,000,000 of the funds of his customers. He was finally caught and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. He escaped on a legal technicality. Again he was put on trial and escaped while under heavy bail.

DISGUISED AS A WOMAN.

He was traced to Mexico, where it was said the late President Madero hatched a plot to have him extradited, but, disguised as an old woman, Rochette again escaped after many startling adventures. At last accounts he was supposed to have lost himself somewhere in the Near East.

The many delays in the Rochette trials led to charges that several cabinet members had conspired to prevent justice being dealt to the defaulter.

Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, started a campaign against Minister of Finance Joseph Caillaux in this connection and the murder of the editor by the cabinet minister's wife is said to have been due to the accusations printed in the Figaro.

FAMOUS CAILLAUX CASE.

The murder of the editor occurred on March 16, 1913. On the morning of the murder, Madame Caillaux, after talking over with her husband the publication of 138 articles which had occured in the Figaro directed against M. Caillaux, visited the office of the Figaro.

She feared that Calmette was about to publish certain love letters which had been written to her by her husband before their marriage and while she was another's wife. Gaining access to Calmette's private office, she shot him dead.

She was arrested and the case came to trial. She was put upon the stand in her own behalf and told in her own words a remarkable story of the murder in which she gave the motives that actuated the crime and the emotional stress which she had undergone previous to its execution.

The jury returned a verdict of acquittal after deliberating but fifty minutes, amid scenes of the wildest excitement in the Court of Assizes, in Paris, July 28, 1914.

GAS for Cooking

Gas was used for cooking purposes in 97.4% of all the new houses in Boston during the past year, according to our records.

Because:

Gas Is Cheaper

Coal is no longer cheaper than gas for cooking, but the increases in price of coal together with the decreases in price of gas during the past few years have combined to make gas cooking cheaper than coal.

Gas Is Quicker

There is no longer any saving to be gained by running the coal stove in winter. It will be cheaper to heat the kitchen by separate means and use gas all the year round. Gas at 80 cents per thousand is cheaper for cooking than coal at $8.00 per ton and coal is likely to advance materially during this fall and winter.

Time saved in getting the coal ready to do its job is worth dollars, even if gas cost more—which it doesn't. Think of the millions of hours and the hard drudgery saved every day in the homes of this country by the use of gas for cooking!

Gas Is Better

Precise regulation of heat guarantees uniform results in cooked food—something you cannot get with coal. The latest type of gas stove has a clock which can be set so that the food is left to cook by itself for a predetermined period, when the gas will be shut off without further attention.

We carry complete lines of gas cooking stoves at our Appliance Stores.

27 NEW PLAGUE VICTIMS IN BAY STATE IN 24 HOURS

Twenty-seven cases of infantile paralysis, six of which are in Boston, were reported today by the State Department of Health, for the twenty-four-hour period ending at 9 o'clock today.

The first case to be reported at the State Farm in Bridgewater was given out today when the records showed that Arthur Follensbee was suffering from the disease.

Today's cases bring the total for the month up to 469, as compared with 625 for the entire month of September. Unless there is a marked falling off in the number of cases for the remainder of the month October will have more cases of the disease than any month in this or any previous year.

From January 1 to July 1 there were but thirty cases reported. There were 107 in July and 232 in August, with 625 in September.

Of the new cases, two are in Walpole, making five there thus far in the month, two in Brookline, where eight cases have been reported in October, and one in Cambridge, making twenty-five in the month.

Two more physicians will be appointed at once, to act as field agents, and relieve the overworked men of the department who, because of the prevalence of the disease, have been working night and day.

The State Department of Health report for the day, including twenty-seven cases, follows:

Beverly—Gertrude Smith, No. 13 Knowlton street; Mary MacDougall, rear No. 6 School street.

Bridgewater—Arthur Follansbee, State Farm.

Brookline—Henry Barry, No. 26 Jamaica road; Helen Halloran, No. 96 Brookline avenue.

Cambridge—One case.

Everett—Stanley Crosby, No. 972 Broadway.

Gloucester—Richard L. Freitas, No. 7 Staten street.

Lynn—Celia Pearlman, No. 25 Prospect street.

Lowell—Lillian E. Weldon, No. 96 Epping street.

Malden—Roy Barthelmes, No. 26 Wyeth street.

Norman A. Moss, three, No. 27 Ainsworth street.

Joseph Calantone, No. 51 Sunnyside avenue.

Spurred to Work by Plague Increase

Spurred on to action by the increase in the number of cases of infantile paralysis in the State, there will be a meeting today at which ways and means of combatting the disease will be discussed. Those interested will assemble at the Hotel Tuileries, No. 270 Commonwealth avenue, at 2:30 this afternoon.

Mrs. John Hays Hammond has issued invitations to the following-named: Governor McCall, Mayor Curley, Dr. Allan J. McLoughlin, State Health Commissioner; Dr. Milton J. Rosenau of the Harvard Commission and other prominent people who it is expected will attend.

WOMEN ARE ACTIVE.

The circular letter of invitation states that "the co-operation of the women of the State of Massachusetts is needed in the fight which must be unflaggingly waged against the scourge of infantile paralysis, and looks forward to their hearty sympathy and co-operation in this question which so vitally concerns the welfare of the little citizens of the Commonwealth."

Furthermore, the letter says: "Unless the cause of the disease can be discovered and its ravages palliated, infantile paralysis becomes a perennial menace. The weather of Winter does not destroy these germs, and the greatest experts agree that there is danger of a return of this withering epidemic with renewed violence next Summer."

Already the Militia of Mercy has arranged for a theatrical entertainment which is being arranged by Lawrence McCarty, manager of the Opera House, who has been zealous with Mrs. John Hays Hammond, president of the Militia of Mercy. His program will include every artist of prominence in Boston as well as others from other points.

The entertainment committee includes such well known people as Francis Starr, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Hackett, Mr. and Mrs. Faversham, Miss Blanche Bates, Viola Allen, Amelia Bingham, Mrs. Julia Arthur, Miss Emma Frohman, Mrs. Henry B. Harris, Mrs. Alice Fisher Harcourt and others.

PATRONESSES CHOSEN.

The committee to arrange for the benefit, in co-operation with the above-named, includes Mrs. Samuel W. McCall, Mrs. Eugene N. Foss, Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, Mrs. James M. Curley, Mrs. Robert D. Evans and the Misses Hunt.

The patronesses invited will include Mrs. Neal Rantoul, Mrs. Alexander Sedgwick, Mrs. Robert Saltonstall, Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, Mrs. Henry F. Searl, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Mrs. L. L. Fenno, Mrs. S. Warren Sturgis, Mrs. Paul Thorndike, Mrs. Thomas Thacher, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Frederick Winthrop, Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mrs. A. L. AVOID ALL MEAT IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Uric Acid in meat excites Kidneys and irritates the Bladder.

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder weakness or Kidney-Backache.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

A FRIEND IN NEED IS A FRIEND INDEED—

Britton Wins in Romp
Lewis Proves Set-Up

By RINGSIDE.

A packed house turned out for the Jack Britton-Ted (Kid) Lewis muss at the Arena. Their twelve-round encounter was crowded with action; a harsh and busy combat every foot of the way. Judged by past performances in Boston, Lewis was thought to have a little something on Britton. But this time Britton was the heavy man in the production, and he won by the widest of margins.

Britton was in debt to the Greater Boston boxing fans. Last night he paid off and now he should be a careful enough party to keep operating on high in all future local bookings. 'Twas a sad, dismal flivver Britton pulled when on with Johnny Griffith, so-called Akron Flash, in his last local start.

Last night the New York boy was at his best, and though getting off none too well, put up the fight of a high-class artist when once he got on his stride, and from the fifth round on Lewis, no slouch himself, was outboxed, out-fought, out-stepped and out-manoeuvred.

It was little short of idiotic for the Armory A. A. to have it announced that Britton and Lewis were battling for the welterweight crown. 'Twas a catchweight affair. What's more, both battlers were terrifically high in flesh, near-middleweights if not middleweights.

A HARSH, BUSY BATTLE.

For all that, Britton and Lewis traveled at top speed all the way. Fast and scientific at times, a heap of rough work was crowded into the melee. There's no love between the Yankee and the Britisher. So, all in all, it was pretty much of a grudge affair.

Not since the days when he was operating as a lightweight, and at 135 pounds, Britton did not have to take a back seat to any of them, has the New Yorker showed the all-round class he exhibited last night. The talent knew it was in him to go over big. What's more, they had the hunch Jack was going to be bracketed.

Where early in the day Britton ruled a 5-to-4 choice, the wise-cracking brigade, with barely a skip, went to him at ringside and, when the big show started, Jack was a smoky hot 10 to 6 favorite.

It was Lewis' first start since last June, when he put Mike Glover to rout at the St. Botolph street casino. He was a member of the Billy Gibson fistic party that made a wild goose chase to Buenos Aires in search of fame and fortune.

A VACATION FOR LEWIS.

It appears that when Ted landed in South America he found his money had been deposited in New York. When the cable failed to bring back any satisfactory explanation concerning the bundle—a mere pile of some $5,000, it is understood—Lewis refused to be tossed around. Hence he made it a pleasure affair entirely.

Lewis got off to a running start last night. He won the first round, easily made the second canto a 50-50 affair and flashed to the front again in the third. Then Britton got underway. Jack seemed sure of himself. Where he had been guilty of doing considerable missing for three rounds, he finally began bunching his drives. Likewise did he make Lewis do a pile of missing.

All the way it was a busy battle, with Britton ever doing the classier toiling. Lewis' one chance to be bracketed was to have gone down and stayed down when struck low in the fifth round. There was no mistaking the blow; it was aimed low and struck low.

TED'S LONE CHANCE.

Referee Conley, I think, would have disqualified Britton if Lewis had sunk to the canvas and a claim of foul been issued by the Londoner's manager, Jimmie Johnston. But a thorough showman is the New Yorker. He knows that when the populace turns out it should get the best possible run for its money. So he issued no squawk.

Britton won the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds without a skip. In the seventh he landed a stiff left hook solidly on Lewis' jaw. Ted was sent areeling back, and Jack half-tripped him as he started to fall. So, down in heap went Lewis. No, it was no bona-fide knockdown; might not have happened if Ted had not fallen over his opponent.

Honors were even in the eighth, but in the ninth Britton cut loose his fastest. First of all he elected to battle it stiffly at short range. Then he resorted to oozing in his tantalizing left jab. Lewis flashed at the start of the tenth, but Britton caught him at the bell. The eleventh was about an even thing, with Britton outhustling Lewis in the twelfth.

GOOD SHOW; BIG HOUSE.

The entire battle doped well. It was one of the best fought in Boston in a long time; was viewed by a great house, and with the Triple-A management using good judgment in future bookings, the success of the Fall and Winter boxing season appears assured.

In the semi-final, at eight rounds, Tony Vatlan gave Johnny Emery a stiff lacing. The left-handed Italian had matters pretty much his own way throughout.

Pat Owens essayed to give away too much weight to Joe Stanton. It was a fast, satisfactory mill, with Stanton being well entitled to the decision he received. Owens' manager made a bad match. Pat was badly outweighed.

At his notch, Owens is one of the best prospects in this section, but he should not be asked to take ten or a dozen pounds the worst of the weights. Stanton is a good boy himself and last night boxed in vastly improved fashion over his last start.

Young Amos, subbing for Johnny Murray, got off well enough against Leo Downey, but went down in the third and there remained.

LAST NIGHT IN THE RING.

Gloucester, Oct. 18.—Jimmy Grey of Chelsea, substituting for Joe Morgan of Manchester, N. H., gave Curley Hume of England a sound beating in twelve rounds at the Cape Ann A. C. Grey gained three knockdowns. Tommy Corbley of Gloucester knocked out Young Britt of Gloucester in the second round.

New York, Oct. 18.—Joe Lynch, the latest bantamweight sensation, knocked out Johnny Dolan in the fourth round at the City A. C. of Westchester. Lynch dropped Dolan four times in the third round.

LEONARD IN ACID TEST

New York's Lightweight Contender Battles Ever Hammer at Kansas City Tonight

Kansas City, Oct. 18.—Benny Leonard, New York's celebrated candidate for the lightweight championship, and Ever Hammer, Chicago's best lightweight bet, clash in their fifteen-round bout here tonight.

The tussle has aroused a tremendous amount of interest in the Middle West, and a large delegation of Chicago "fans" are on hand.

The rival lightweights have agreed to make 135 pounds ringside. As the winner of tonight's contest will probably be signed to clash with Freddie Welsh in a bout for the lightweight championship, Leonard and Hammer are expected to travel at top speed from the time that the dear old chimes sound at the opening of the first round until the contest ends.

FORBES LAUDS LEONARD.

Hammer is a ring idol in this section of the country as a result of his victory over Welsh in a ten-round no-decision bout, his win over Joe Welling and his two close battles with Johnny Dundee. But in Leonard he will be opposed by one of the classiest boxers in the lightweight ranks.

"I saw only one regular fighter in New York of the newer crop, and his name is Benny Leonard."

That's the way Harry Forbes, former world's bantamweight champion, spoke today. As Forbes was a ring wonder when in his prime, and has always been rated as a keen judge of boxers, his statements on the lightweight situation along dear old Broadway must be given serious consideration.

The veteran is located in Chicago, and is attending to the business affairs of Tony Melchor, a promising young heavyweight. Forbes recently took his protege East. This gave him a chance to give New York's crop of fistic lights the well-known up and down.

SAYS LEONARD POSSESSES PUNCH

"Leonard is a real star," Forbes said. "He can do a lot of execution with a fast left hand and slams like a fiend with a right. I've heard stories of his having lost his punch and that he sacrificed it in order to gain a lot of speed. All I can say about that is that he didn't show it when I was watching him."

Three Governors to See Battle at Haverhill

Haverhill, Oct. 18.—Three New England Governors, the head of the Massachusetts Senate, the Congressman who started the ball rolling on the preparedness issue and other distinguished guests will be among the thousands present at the Georgetown-Dartmouth football game which will christen the new Haverhill Stadium Saturday.

Governors McCall of Massachusetts, Spaulding of New Hampshire and Curtis of Maine have all secured tickets, while two former Governors will come with their staff.

Henry G. Wells, president of the Massachusetts Senate, will be in the party, and Congressman A. P. Gardner is coming on from Washington with a delegation of six men.

The Mayors and municipal officials from practically all the Merrimack valley cities will be on hand, so that quite a galaxy of talent will be present when the kickoff occurs at 2:30.

The exceptionally pleasant weather of the past few weeks has given the contractors ample time for the erection of the new stand which will be used for the first time on Saturday, and the committee announces that plenty of seats will be on sale at the gate, thus giving the general public an opportunity to witness a big college contest.

HARVARD SEEKING BRAVE

Fred Snodgrass Sought by Crimson to Succeed Mitchell as Coach of Baseball Nine.

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

Over at Cambridge a situation exists which is greatly similar to that existing in the Red Sox camp.

While President Lannin is working hard to retain his manager, Bill Carrigan, or land a pilot equally as good, the Crimson baseball 'heads are having a hard time landing a competent successor to Fred Mitchell. The man that Harvard wants doesn't fancy the position inasmuch as his home is in California.

Strange though it may seem, the one man the Harvard management has actually broached regarding the coaching job is Fred Snodgrass, the Braves centrefielder. "Snow" hasn't decided yet just exactly what he will do regarding the offer. It is known, however, that he considers the distance from California to Boston as one of the bars to his accepting the duties.

Folks will wonder why Snodgrass is considered. He comes in as a result of having been a catcher originally, and one who possesses a thorough knowledge of the game. The Crimson athletic management wants a man who has been either a catcher or a pitcher, and who thoroughly understands those two departments.

Harvard was so successful with a year of Braves'-style baseball that it is anxious to retain the system, and consequently the offer to coach was made to Snodgrass. One other Brave may be under consideration, but at the present time there is nobody who can definitely state just who he is. The Harvard authorities will say nothing, and at Braves headquarters they refuse to do any talking.

Harvard wants the Stallings system and will work to the very end to secure it. The coaching position at Cambridge will remain open for a long time before a choice is finally made. At present Fred Mitchell is handling the squad, and each day finds them indulging in a game. Despite the high wind, which swept across Soldiers Field with cyclonic force, a seven-inning game was played.

Practice will be tabooed today unless the wind abates.

SOCCER SHOTS

The one back game is proving very popular as an unpopular kind of play this season. To the teams securing victories through it, it may be satisfactory but to the spectators it is the poorest and slowest way imaginable and hardly sportsmanlike when playing with a full team.

• • •

Trimo F. C. was the first team to play the one back game this season and after securing a few victories it has stuck to it. Bob Grier is the one that fills the position.

• • •

Last Thursday the Hibs played a one back game against St. George and Cosgrove was called upon very often in defences. His defences faltered and but for two lucky goals both teams might be playing yet.

• • •

The National cup series will soon be under way and it is expected that St. Georges will meet Hurley's Olympics at Lawrence on Saturday in the qualifying round.

• • •

Other games in the qualifying round are, Chicopee Rovers vs. Clan McLelland, New Bedford Celtic vs. Lawrence F. C., Swedish Americans vs. Clan Sutherland, and Methuen vs. Lawrence Thistles.

• • •

The Brockton F. C., runners-up in the league championship last season, is having a very hard time; to date it has not won a game in the league series.

• • •

Manager McGregor of the Trimo F. C. is to be commended for bringing together so formidable a lot of players in one season. Hadn't it been for an unfortunate forfeit his team might have been in the lead instead of holding second position.

Cubs After Mitchell
May Replace Tinker

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

All rumors and reports to the contrary notwithstanding, Joseph J. Lannin emphatically states that he has not considered selling the Red Sox to the John J. McCarthy syndicate or any other set of individuals at the present time. What may come in the future is hard to foretell. It's our guess, however, Lannin sticks and that he pilots the Red Sox to Hot Springs, Ark., in March.

Having disposed of that matter to our own satisfaction we took it unto ourselves to inquire as to whether or not there was any truth in a recent statement to the effect that the Braves might revert to the ownership of James E. Gaffney and Robert H. Davis. Today it seems a certainty that Messrs. Haughton and Wise will retain their control of affairs.

It's a known fact that both men were rather pleased with their fling at major league baseball. Futhermore, it's a known fact they want one more try at a pennant and they intend taking it.

While neither Wise nor Haughton has had anything to say personally about the matter, it appears a practical certainty that both stick and do their utmost to land Boston a pennant winner in the old league.

WHAT'S SORELY NEEDED.

Folks may wonder just how they hope to do it with the present lot of players they have under contract. While at first it would appear a herculean task, if one stops and ponders, it won't seem quite so difficult. To begin with, practically all that is needed is an outfielder or two with ability to hit in the immediate vicinity of 300.

Of course, the task of landing the pair would appear exceptionally difficult, but if one wonders over the problem he can see a clearing. It will be remembered that about a month ago Fred Mitchell signed a contract with the Braves covering the next three years. According to the terms of his contract he is either a player, coach or scout.

The active playing days of Mitchell have about passed. Unquestionally he is one of the most able coaches in the business. As a scout he stands at the head of the list. But it was as an acting manager that he shone most brilliantly, and inasmuch as managers are in demand in one or two cities around the National League circuit we can see a strong chance of "Mitch" passing right out of Boston and into a good job in some other city.

MITCHELL IS NOMINEE.

It seems almost a certainty that Mitchell will take charge of the Chicago Cubs next season. Rumors may have both Johnny Evers and Frank Chance under consideration for the post, but it's our guess that right now "Mitch" has the inside track.

The writer is not able to say definitely that Weeghman and his associates have started a dicker whereby Mitchell goes to the Cubs. However, he feels sure that proposals have been made which are being kindly considered by the Braves management. But to land Mitchell Chicago must come clean with an outfielder or two and possibly something else. As fans will recall Tinker showed at one time or another five outfielders on his team. Included among theme were Leslie Mann, "Cy" Williams, Max Flack, Joe Kelly and Jimmy Smith. In the lot are more than two or three who clout up around the favored class.

Consequently it would appear as though Weeghman could land Mitchell if he made a proper offer to Manager Stallings. Its by no means a certainty that the Braves wouldn't take Steve Yerkes in a deal that effected Mitchell. While the Braves have an excellent prospect in Rawlins, a player of Yerkes' known ability would be far better to start off with than would a youngster who hasn't much major league experience.

FRED IS MAN WANTED.

While nothing official has been said to Mitchell regarding the matter, the writer knows that during the World's Series a man who is very close to Weeghman told Mitchell there was a mighty strong chance of his becoming Tinker's successor.

Further than that the writer knows that during the last Eastern trip of the Cubs Weeghman took dinner in New York with one of the best posted baseball men in the big city. At that time he discussed Mitchell in an exceptionally favorable manner.

Soon after that the first rumor was heard that Mitchell would get the position. Meanwhile Mitchell is dividing his time between his farm at Stowe and Soldiers Field, where he is giving the Harvard baseball candidates their Fall drill. The writer has talked with him recently, but from the lips of Stallings' "Right Eye" nothing regarding a managerial berth was forthcoming.

THERE'S SOME STRENGTH.

It can be seen by reading the foregoing paragraphs that the Braves have a fine chance to add some playing strength to their present outfit. With the staff of pitchers they have, a good catching staff in addition, there is not much needed to brace the club up considerably.

Though some fans might not fancy "Big Ed" Konetchy he satisfies those who own the club. While Konetchy, Maranville and Smith as the neucleus of an infield the prospect doesn't look so bad in that department.

BIG BAN HINTS AT A SALE

President of American League States He Won't Be Surprised if Lannin Disposes of Sox.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—President B. B. Johnson of the American League hints strongly that the Boston Red Sox may land in new hands shortly.

Mr. Johnson also questions the reported statement of President Lannin of the Boston club that only three clubs in the circuit broke even in 1916.

"The American League season just closed was the most prosperous in the history of the organization," states Mr. Johnson.

"The Athletics was the only club that lost money. And I cannot understand how Lannin could say that only three broke even.

"His own club certainly did not finish in the hole unless the management was decidedly extravagant, and as Lannin is a good business man I don't see how that could happen.

"Of course, Lannin is very liberal in the running of his club, but, even making an allowance for that, there should be a fair balance on the right side of the ledger."

There might have been "a killing" made by several club owners, according to hints thrown out by Johnson, had not the war-time contracts with the players prevailed. The majority of these are still in force and will be for another year.

President Johnson did not have the final figures in his possession, he said, but he thought that the White Sox would probably head the procession in total attendance, with Detroit next.

Boston probably would come third, with Cleveland and St. Louis close together.

Whether there will be new owners at Boston President Johnson would not say. President Lannin had told him, he asserted, as early as last Summer, that he wanted to sell out, principally on account of his health.

New York, Oct. 18.—Jack Dillon of Indianapolis outpointed Tim O'Neil of Chicago in eight rounds in their ten-round bout at the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn. The other two rounds were even.

Everybody had expected that Dillon would either make O'Neil jump out of the ring, or that the Chicagoan would be carried out, but Tim was still sticking around and fighting at the end. Dillon weighed 173 pounds and O'Neil 172.

The varsity line had a good "life" to it. The men charged low and stiffly, and on the defence the attack of the scrubs withered away, so speedily did the varsity forwards break through, throwing the runners or delaying them so the backfield tacklers, or ends, could fell them.

NARY A FIRST DOWN

The [illegible] to make even one first down, so hardily did their opponents play.

Every member of the varsity who had a leg under him got into the scrimmage and the [illegible] evenly divided. The regulars followed the ball closely and two of their touchdowns were made after the ball had been picked up on a miscue by the second team.

Casey again was the electric flash of the backfield. [illegible] teen [illegible] registered [illegible] Henry Minot also tore off thirty yards, which Stan Burnham turned into a touchdown, after several short rushes had been made.

VARSITY AT ITS BEST.

The varsity started with the ball in its possession at midfield. Short rushes averaging [illegible] five to eight yards, carried the ball to the scrubs' 10-yard line, where it was lost on an uncompleted forward pass. Caner broke through several plays later and blocked a punt made by Ellison and it was recovered for the varsity. Three rushes brought the ball to the 10-yard mark, where Horween was hustled over for a touchdown.

E. Glinn intercepted one of Robinson's tosses for a pass a few minutes later, but the scrubs [illegible] varsity line impenetrable and were forced to kick. Casey [illegible] the ball back twenty-five yards [illegible] yard [illegible] the two Harvard backfields.

Henry Minot, after a short recess, unwound a 30-yard prance, which brought the varsity down to the 5-yard line. On the next play Burnham squirmed through for the fourth touchdown.

By way of variety the last tally was made when Felton, sub-quarter, threw a forward pass to Gaston as the latter stood behind the scrubs goal-line.

Caner was in the scrimmage for the first time [illegible] set [illegible] latter was shifted from tackle to end.

Cornell Regulars at Their Best

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 18.—A patched-up Cornell varsity plunged through the scrubs for two touchdowns and Benedict kicked a field goal. The scrimmage was fast and the varsity showed plenty of snap.

Bretz, who with Benedict [illegible] Shiverick at quarterback, pulled a sensational twenty-yard run for a touchdown, fighting off several tacklers.

Van Horn, Mayer and [illegible] the latter a recruit from the [illegible] were also given a trial in the varsity backfield. [illegible] replaced [illegible] at left end.

The improved playing of Hoff at right end is an encouraging feature. Tilley donned the togs for the first time this Fall and worked out lightly.

Agnes Wonders if She Is Doing Wrong in Accepting Bainbridge's Help

Agnes is aweakened and hears from Bainbridge

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XLIV

[illegible]

Agnes Morley was ready for bed an hour after Hasbrook Bainbridge's departure, when once more she heard the doorbell ring.

Glancing at the clock, she saw that it was after 10:30. Surely, then, this could be no caller, she decided, as, putting on her wrapper and slippers, she obeyed the summons.

It was not a caller, but a messenger boy, who handed her an envelope bearing the imprint of a certain well-known club and addressed to her.

"I guess there ain't no answer," the boy opined, then ran downstairs.

Ag[illegible] the [illegible]brook Bainbridge. He had probably stopped at his club on the way home and had written her some message which he had forgotten to utter during his call on her.

A HARD POSITION

The girl had not known how tired she was until this message came—this message which proved that some one was thinking of her welfare and of her health.

For a minute she let herself en[illegible] it came the realization that, kind as this man seemed, he was, after all, her employer, to whom she was only a poor working girl, and on this reflection followed the sickening doubt as to whether she had not [illegible] just now when [illegible] ful premonition [illegible]

And then as she closed her eyes [illegible] the scarcely suppressed gleam of happiness in Phil's eyes this morning.

And with this happy recollection [illegible] sleep.

Miss Durkee had finished typing Mr. Bainbridge's replies to the [illegible] that had [illegible] her start and drop the reel of ribbon she was unwinding.

MISS DURKEE BLAMED

"Miss Durkee!" he exclaimed, "you have made a ridiculous blunder here! I certainly never dictated such a sentence as this to you. I am not at all interested in the digestive apparatus of my correspondent."

He held a letter [illegible] his blunt forefinger pointing to a single line. She read it, her cheeks burning with mortification and anger.

"'We approve of your digestion,'" the man sneered. "That's a nice mistake—to write 'digestion' instead of 'suggestion,' isn't it now?"

"I—I beg your pardon," the stenographer stammered. "I never [illegible] thing before."

"I should hope not," he retorted. "And see that you never do it again."

His manner angered her still further, and she tried to excuse herself.

"Really, Mr. Bainbridge," she [illegible], "as I never made such a mistake before I do not think it's quite fair of you to be so much displeased with me now. All stenographers make mistakes sometimes."

"Those of your class may," he snarled. "During your absence I have been so fortunate as to have one who did not."

The green eyes snapped dangerously. But before their owner could speak Philip Hale entered the room.

"I was looking for you in my father's office, Mr. Bainbridge," Philip tried to speak indifferently. "But I saw that the place was empty. What's up?"

"[illegible] in Miss Morley's family," [illegible]dge explained briefly.

Philip started to ask an impulsive question, then remembered himself in time to say instead—"My father's coming back tomorrow."

"I know he is," Bainbridge rejoined, "so as he will want Miss Morley's services, I suppose I shall have to put up with what I can get."

Ancestors

"What has Lem Swasher ever done to entitle him to swank and put on airs?"

"Nothin' on his own account," replied Farmer Corntossel. "As near as I can make out, it's ancestry that makes Lem so kind o' haughty?"

"Has he distinguished ancestors?"

A Fictionless Fable

[illegible] Viola was a [illegible] body agreed to that.

The years went on and Billy and Freddie and Johnnie and more of their ilk took Viola around to the places where conspicuously "popular girls" are wont to gather—and Viola continued to be 'a good [illegible] a little [illegible]

He met Viola on the golf course and he liked her clean, smashing drives and the tanned forearm her rolled up blouse displayed.

MORE ATTRACTED

The next time Tom Gregory met Viola was at a dancing party. Her grace and high spirits attracted him still more.

Viola's theory that attraction between man and woman was ninety per cent. physical seemed justified—[illegible] them for her! Tom [illegible] was just the husband for [illegible] it was time he realized it.

READY TO SPOON

[illegible] next time he came to call Viola lit a great many rose-shaded candles and dressed herself in clinging and revealing chiffons fragrant with delicate sachet. She had appealed to Tom on every ground but the emotional one—and it was [illegible] be made. [illegible]ingly—and [illegible]

So Viola decided it was time for her to do something and she slid an appealing little hand into his and crept seductively into an embrace that was almost unprepared for her.

And Tom Gregory, idealist, burst out: "My, you're a good little scout. I'm ready to spoon a bit if you are."

And two weeks later his engagement was announced to a very charming young girl with whom he had been wont to walk home from the Settlement House where they both worked on Friday nights.

Moral: When a girl "who knows all about men" meets a real man she had better not let him find out too much about her warped and twisted "modern" viewpoint.

Making Pets of Birds

Remarkable Stories Told of Their Intelligence

A golden eagle, brought up as a pet by an English officer

By Garrett P. Serviss

[illegible] met with something [illegible]

[illegible] ing comprehension of our wishes or intentions, and responds to our advances, the impression that it produces [illegible] different from that [illegible] tions of [illegible] four-footed creatures confined like ourselves to terrestrial locomotion.

Some of the stories told of the intelligence of birds are almost incredible. For instance, Professor [illegible] book on "Animal Intelligence" describes an automaton once publicly exhibited in England which performed certain movements in any order that the spectators might demand. It turned out that the secret motive power was a canary bird concealed in the apparatus which had been taught to run in different directions in response to particular words of command, and its weight, acting through levers, set the mechanism in motion.

UNDER OPERATION

There is a well-accredited story of a golden eagle which having been caught in a fox-trap that mutilated its claw, submitted to a surgical operation, at the Paris Zoological Gardens in a manner which impressed all the observers with a conviction that the eagle comprehended the intentions of its surgical attendants. Of course, in such accidental cases the onlookers are liable to ascribe to the animals concerned more intelligence than they may really possess, but long familiarity with pet animals affords a better ground of judgment.

Linked with the example is a recent one of a golden eagle caught when very small by a British soldier in the Balkans, and now as tame as a canry.

Wilson, the ornithologist, related a remarkable story of a pet crow, in Delaware, which lived for years with its master, and performed many curious tricks to the amusement of the family of visitors, but at last suddenly disappeared. It was believed to have been shot, but nearly a year later, as its master was standing with some friends, one morning, on the shore of a river a flock of crows passed, and one of them, leaving its companions, flew straight toward the men and alighted on the shoulder of its old master, "gabbling away with great volubility."

A PASSING CALL

But it refused to let itself be caught or detained, and after having, as it were, made a passing call for the sake of old friendship, flew away in pursuit of the flock, now far off in the sky, and was never seen again.

The wonderful power of mimicry possessed by parrots is the chief cause of their popularity as pets, for no more striking evidence of quasi human intelligence could be given by a bird than the capacity to repeat words and sentences with an appearance of comprehending their meaning. What could be more amusing than the conduct of the parrot belonging to the famous French naturalist Buffon, which, after being taught to offer its claw to anyone who said: "Polly, give me your claw," at length acquired the habit of itself asking for its claw and then holding up the claw in response to its own demand!

The description of Dr. Samuel Wilks, F. R. S., of the education of a parrot must interest every person who is fond of animal pets, and besides it throws some light on the workings of the bird's brain. When beginning to teach a sentence to a parrot, says Dr. Wilks, it must be repeated many times, and all the while the bird listens attentively, putting the opening of its ear as near the speaker as possible.

After a few hours the parrot is heard trying to repeat the phrase that it has listened to. The first attempts are "very poor and ludicrous," but eventually the words are repeated perfectly in their proper order. "If the sentence be composed of a few words, the first two or three are said over and over again, and then another and another word added, until the sentence is complete, the pronunciation being at first very imperfect, and then becoming gradually more complete until the task is accomplished.

"Thus hour after hour will the bird be indefatigably working at the sentence, and not until some days have elapsed will it be perfect." Dr. Wilks adds that the process pursued by the parrot seemed to be exactly what he had observed in a child learning a French phrase.

Cook's Mistake

It was in one of the large cities of Australia. A lady engaged a cook who had just arrived from a country town. She brought with her good recommendations, and was supposed to be a real good kitchen servant. Her mistress ordered eels for dinner, and next morning went as usual to give her instructions for that meal.

"We are to have fish for dinner, Jane. I suppose you know how to cook it?"

"Oh, yes, certainly, ma'am," she replied.

A short time after the fishmonger's boy arrived with the parcel, and on Jane opening it, she gave some horrible screams. Her mistress rushed into the kitchen.

"Whatever is the matter, Jane?" she said.

"Oh, ma'am, I thought you said you ordered fish for dinner?" replied Jane.

"Well, so I did," said her mistress.

"Well, ma'am, the fishmonger has sent snakes."

All the Jobs

By a piece of good luck the new recruit had been appointed orderly to his captain, and the latter was now giving him his instructions.

"You are to rise at 5 o'clock," he said, "shave yourself, and clean your boots and equipment. Then you clean my boots, buttons, belt, etc., shave me, see to my horse—which you must groom thoroughly—and clean the equipment. After that you go to your hut, help to serve out breakfast, and after breakfast lend a hand in washing up. At 8 o'clock you go on parade and drill till 12——"

The recruit, whose face had been growing longer and longer, then interrupted.

"Beg pardon, sir, but is there any one else in the army besides me?"

THIRD INSTALMENT.

"So you're not afraid, my beauty?" said Brown. He lingered on the last word with a certain grim suggestiveness which made me shudder. But I covered the shudder with a smile.

"Not afraid, eh? Well, we'll see"——

From one of his pockets the man pulled out a large-mouthed bottle, which my brain mechanically registered must hold about four ounces—of something. Very carefully he uncorked it. I found myself watching with [illegible] fascinated feeling that I must not lose a single movement on the part of this big, brutal, gorilla-like man. Slowly and with infinite caution he spilled a drop or two of the liquid on the wooden centre table.

As the first drop fell to the varnished surface a puff of smoke rose. A second followed it and I saw there were two tiny holes burned in the table.

The man turned toward me and held the bottle poised as if to throw it full in my face.

The Terrible Threat

"We won't shoot you, my beauty, but we'll spoil your face," said he.

Every word fell grim and measured and slow. What I had seen carried conviction and utter horror to my mind.

To go through life mutilated, hideous, a thing from which people would turn with a shuddering too great for any sympathy they might feel! I have always felt the most intense pity for the tragic people who bear on their faces disfiguring birthmarks, even while I know that they are so accustomed to the affliction which has grown up with them since childhood that it cannot have for them the shock of horror it has for one beholding it for the first time.

But mutilation in later life! Mutilation which leads to horrible disfigurement! I shivered at the thought. To go with these men to torture I could dare. Fear of the future always carries with it the hope of rescue. But the immediate present was so horrible that it shattered all my power of endurance at a blow.

I found myself afraid! Of all the momentary experiences which life can bring I think there is none more terrible than abject, numbing, overwhelming fear.

"You'll come with us?" asked the man.

We acquiesced. Brown wrapped the bottle in a piece of paper open at the top. He took it in one hand and clutched my arm with the other. Then he led me out with a casual air of chatting gayly, as if he were off making holiday with his sweetheart.

That trip back over the dusty, winding road was horrible. Particles of the dust seemed catching in my dry throat. Clouds of dust choked me and blinded my eyes as they scintillated in the sunlight. And all the while there was that terrible fear in my heart!

And then rescue came into view—came and passed!

It was as if one waked to the horror of being buried alive and then realized that all about was daylight—that immolation in a living tomb was only a horrible dream. Around the corner came Jimmy Barton—smiling, cheerful, wholesome Jimmy. He would save me. But Brown saw him as soon as I did and he muttered with an accompanying gesture of the hand which held the bottle:

"This guy acts like he knew you. Chase him away or"——

Beatrice Snubs Jimmy

I knew all too well what that "or" meant. And when Jimmy came toward me with the usual Jimmy friendliness and demanded an introduction to the rest of the party I told him quietly that I was on private business.

Snubbing Jimmy could not have been pleasant under any circumstances, but under these circumstances, when Jimmy looked like the rescuing party arriving in time to save the heroine from being burned at the stake [illegible] through a whole pantomime of expression to give weight to the words that I was pretty snippy to an old friend.

But the more impressive gesture was Brown's as he poised that bottle of acid ready to hurl it full in my face. I denied Jimmy, and in the end he walked off with his head in the air, leaving me to my doom—and it was a horrible doom, you must admit.

Brown's face wore a satisfied grin which was more terrifying even than his habitual expression of surly cruelty.

There was no hope for us now. We must go on, for that bottle in Brown's hand renewed my terrors and conquered every thought of rebellion which leaped to life. They led us into the doorway of a hideously dilapidated house.

What could they want of us? I remembered the wagons in the woods—the undertaker's wagon driving off and the other cart withdrawing into the dense stillness. I had seen the end of a grim box protruding from the undertaker's wagon—a casket. What was in it? What was to be our portion for having seen so much as we had? What use could these desperate men be planning to make of us?

A Gloomy Prison

The men led us into a deserted and disorderly living room, which bore signs of a carousal. All about were empty bottles and soiled ash trays. Confusion and disorder and darkness mingled together.

We were subjected to the unpleasantness of a cross-examination and then a search. That revealed nothing in particular except Mrs. Hanson's letter to me. The men studied it with an angry sneer, and then Brown called to some one who must have been lurking in hiding.

A moment later two of the ugly-looking band we had seen in the woods led in Hanson.

At sight of the pretty girl who had brought me there, a strange gleam came into his eyes and I thought he was about to defend us—again rescue seemed in view and passed us by. The momentary impulse to fight for us left Hanson, and in spite of his wife's pleadings he wore an air of absolute indifference.

"What does this letter mean?" asked Brown, shoving it at him grimly.

Hanson read it — then he shrugged his shoulders and smiled indifferently.

"She ain't my wife. I only fooled her into thinking she is. She's just living over there with me and I'm mighty tired of the way she butts in."

More horrible than any of the fear I had known must have been Mrs. Hanson's grief at the moment when she heard herself callously denied by the man she had thought to be her husband. Pity for her and scorn of him suddenly overcame all of my own personal fears. The man turned away to avoid the eyes of the woman he had wronged. And a moment later we were bound hand and foot and thrust, like inanimate bales of goods, into a gloomy cellar which lay at the festering foundations of the house of crime.

In Our Wonderful World

One of the most remarkable geological freaks in Mexico is a mountain situated near Pachuca, which presents the appearance at a distance of being covered with spikes. The sides of the mountain are closely studded with stone columns or palisades. These columns are five feet to twelve feet long and as large around as an average man's body. It is [illegible] which [illegible] of being [illegible] is almost perpendicular, and the stone columns protrude from the surface at right angles, forming an impressive picture.

Pachuca is one of the most noted mining districts in Mexico, and it [illegible] geologists that this remarkable spiked mountain is out of keeping with the remainder of the formation of the mineralized region. The stone is as hard as flint, and has withstood the elements for ages. The spikes form a natural [illegible] that makes the mountain appear from a distance like [illegible] the Pachuca district are situated not far from this wonderful freak of nature, but the formation encountered in their respective underground workings is of an entirely different kind from that of the palisade.

The word "calico" has a queer origin. Many centuries ago the first monarch of the province of Malabar, in Hindustan, gave to one of his chiefs as a reward for distinguished services his sword and all the land within the limit of which a cock crowing at a certain temple could be heard. From this circumstance the little town which grew up in the centre of this territory was called Calicodu, or "the cock crowing." Afterwards it was called Calicut, and from this place the first cotton goods were imported bearing the word "calico."

"Parents" Introduced

A [illegible] hoop bounced through the railings and played havoc with the kitchen window. With a fighting look in her eye, the lady of the house awaited the appearance of the hoop's owner. Presently he came.

"Please, ma'am, I've broken your window," he said, "an' here's father to mend it."

And sure enough he was followed by a stolid looking man, who at once started [illegible] the boy ran off with [illegible]

"That'll be half a dollar," announced the glazier, when the window was whole once more.

"Half a dollar!" gasped the lady. "But your little boy broke it—the little fellow with the hoop, you know. You're his father, aren't you?"

The solid man shook his head.

"Don't know him from Adam," he said. "He came round to my place and told me his mother wanted her winder mended. You're his mother, ain't you?"

PROFIT TAKING HALTS RISE IN STOCKS

Trading in the New York stock market was irregular at noon, with an undercurrent of strength, following a strong opening and weakness in the second hour. The recessions were mostly caused by heavy profit-taking sales.

The movement of United States Steel, the market leader, was typical of the whole list. This stock opened with a gain of ⅜, later showed a loss of ⅜ and at noon had a gain of ¼.

Cuban sugar stocks attracted attention by their strength. Cuban American Sugar on one sale advanced eight points and Cuba Cane sugar gained a point.

MAY GO HIGHER.

Optimism as regards sugar stocks was due to the high prices of raw and refined sugar, now selling at double the ante-bellum prices. And that sugar prices will go even higher is indicated by the fact that, with Argentina's crop a failure for the second time, the whole world will be practically dependent on Cuba for cane sugar.

Mercantile Marine issues were strong on talk of action at the company's meeting tomorrow on payment of accumulated interest on the preferred stock. American Hide & Leather also showed strength on reports that the stock would acquire valuable rights in the reorganization of the company.

MANY NOON GAINS.

Important gains at noon included Industrial Alcohol 2, Distillers 1, Lehigh Valley 1⅝, Reading 1⅞, Union Pacific 1⅞, Chesapeake & Ohio 1⅛, Canadian Pacific 1⅜ and Mexican Petroleum 1⅝. Losses were: New York Air Brake 1 and Lackawanna Steel 1⅝.

The Boston market was strong all morning, though many prices were unchanged. St. Mary's was a feature for strength, with a gain of 2½ points. Swift & Co. forfeited its early gain of a point.

Other gains at noon included American Zinc 1, Allouez 1 and Calumet & Arizona ⅝.

BRITISH COMPLAIN OF FOOD PRICES

London, Oct. 18.—In a debate over the food situation in the House of Commons, a number of the members complained of the inadequate measures of the government to control food supplies and prevent an excessive rise in prices.

President Walter Runciman of the Board of Trade said he was hungering for a practical proposal for preventing evils due to the increased food consuming capacity, not only of the army, but of munitions and other workers, and the decreasing supplies of food.

CHICAGO COUNTS 808,614 VOTERS

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Chicago will cast more votes in the coming presidential election than any city in the United States. This was assured today when final registration figures were submitted showing 808,614 persons qualified to ballot.

New York has only 725,710, but women do not have the ballot there.

BIG LOAN TO SOLVE SEWAGE PROBLEM

Superintendent Matthew Galt of the Worcester Sewer Department informed the Public Health Council that Worcester will ask the next Legislature for authority to borrow from $500,000 to $750,000 for conducting experiments in sewage disposal and for enlarging the city's disposal plant.

NINE CITIES ONLY IN RACE FOR PLANT

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Ninety per cent of the cities which have filed applications for the government's $11,000,000 armor plate plant will be eliminated before a special board from the Navy Department goes out to inspect cities.

It was stated authoritatively at the Navy Department that the possible cities would be reduced to about nine before the board makes its trip of inspection. The selection, it was said, will not be made within a month.

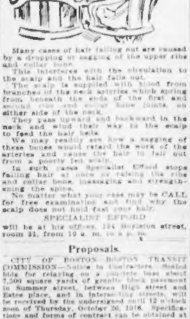
Hair Specialist.

Your Hair



Many cases of hair falling out are caused by a dropping or sagging of the upper ribs and collar bone.

This interferes with the circulation to the scalp and the hair falls out.

The scalp is supplied with blood from branches of the neck arteries which spring from beneath the ends of the first and second ribs and collar bone joints, on either side of the neck.

They pass upward and backward in the neck and wind their way to the scalp to feed the hair bels.

We may readily see how a sagging of these bones would retard the work of the arteries and cause the hair to fall out from a poorly fed scalp.

In such cases Specialist Efford stops falling hair at once by raising the ribs and collar bone, massaging and strengthening the spine.

No matter what your case may be CALL for free examination and find why the scalp does not hold fast your hair.

SPECIALIST EFFORD

will be at his offices, 134 Boylston street, room 31, from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

A Great Law Enacted by the Democrats Under Wilson

ONE of the greatest laws which our national government has passed since the Civil War is that law passed under the Wilson administration which prohibits articles manufactured by women and children who work more than fifty-four hours in a week to pass from one State to another.

Offsetting the many great advantages of our division of government into a large number of autonomous States is one very serious disadvantage. Our National Constitution compels each State to admit goods which the citizens of any State wish to send into another State. Therefore a State which has the proper humanitarian views concerning its working men, women and children, and attempts to prohibit its citizens from working within the State beyond what it considers to be reasonable and healthful hours, often puts its own industries at a disadvantage with the industries of another State which has not those sound views concerning the hours of work or other conditions of labor, and which allows its men, women and children to be wage slaves during any hours the employer chooses to work them.

This situation made it impossible for the progressive and righteous States to continue to reduce the hours of labor and regulate the conditions of labor in its industries, because at some point in the uplifting of industrial conditions of that State the level would be raised so high above the level in the more negligent and backward States that industry would flow off from the higher level to the lower level. In other words, the manufacturer, not being able to sell goods manufactured under the best conditions in competition with goods manufactured under unrestrained conditions of slave labor, would sooner or later be obliged to abandon his plant in the progressive State and re-establish it in another.

In the North generally labor organizations have been more powerful than in the South, because the population has been more concentrated and the workingmen have been able to act more concertedly, hence they have had the power to compel the Legislatures of the Northern States, slowly and reluctantly, but still continuously, to reduce the hours of labor and to improve the conditions under which labor must be performed in our Northern factories.

Several years ago, when organized labor in Massachusetts, backed by intelligent public opinion, was insisting upon the reduction of the hours of labor from fifty-six to fifty-four hours a week, one of the largest and ablest manufacturers of the State came to the office of this newspaper and said to its editor:

"I have come here to appeal to your intelligence and conscience on this fifty-four-hour bill. Let me say by way of preface that I am ready to admit what you have in mind every time you hear a manufacturer protest against the decreasing of the hours of labor. I am ready to admit that we manufacturers have cried 'wolf!' when there was no 'wolf' on this question for a great mnay years. But we have not deliberately lied about it. We simply have had groundless fears. The workmen have been wiser than we in their contention that by shortening the hours of labor we would not necessarily diminish the output. And I am not going to argue with you that this proposed reduction to fifty-four hours will be fatal to the industries of the State, either. Frankly, I do not know whether it will be fatal to Massachusetts industry or not. It is not for the purpose of obtaining your assistance on this PRESENT question that I want to talk it over with you. It is to leave in your mind for consideration this thought—that whether we are right or wrong about the fifty-four-hour bill, whether or not we can stand this reduction to fifty-four hours or can even stand a still further reduction to fifty hours, it is still true that there will come a time when a further reduction will be absolutely fatal to the industries of the State. Now, Mr. Editor," he continued, "isn't that true?"

Of course it was true and there was just one remedy for it. Either the improvement of working conditions could not go on or something would have to be done to prevent the industries of the States paying no heed to the welfare of their working people from competing with goods manufactured under decent American conditions in the other States. The national government alone could accomplish this result through its power over interstate commerce. Congress only could say to the manufacturers in a State where there were no restrictions upon the hours or conditions of labor: "You shall not send your goods out into any other State unless you manufacture them under conditions which the Congress of the United States hereby prescribes." In that way, and in that way only, could intelligent and progressive States be put on an equal footing with the unintelligent, backward States.

Now the singular fact is that the party to which this big manufacturer belonged, the party which the manufacturing interests had controlled for years, has also controlled Congress for more than a generation and yet it never once had the courage or statesmanship to enact such a law. For some extraordinary reason the manufacturers have kept on going to the Northern Legislatures and opposing the trades unions, urging over and over again that humanitarian legislation was ruining the Northern States, and never once did they turn their faces to Congress and seek relief where wisdom and statesmanship demanded that they should seek it.

Isn't it strange that it should remain for the Wilson administration to put this wise law through Congress, which protects the working women and children in the South, where local Legislatures have not been able to protect their working people, and also protects the working men, women and children and manufacturing interests of the North by preventing goods made at the cost of the life and health of the children of the South from coming into competition with their goods?

For this Wilson's administration deserves praise. For this Senator Lodge ought to be ashamed of his attempt to raise up the spectre of sectionalism by accusing President Wilson and his party of being under the domination of the South. Demagogism never descended to such unclean depths as those into which Lodge plunges in such an argument.

A Science of Health That Really Works

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

ONE often hears the protest: "Oh, what's the use of fussing about your health? You'll only worry yourself sick, and we've got to die when our time comes anyhow!" Or we are invited to consider our grandfathers. They knew nothing of bugs or antiseptics or hygiene, and yet look what a healthy, long-lived lot they were! Of course, we might answer one sophistry with another and retort with Mr. Jinks: "Yes, but they're dead!" But this is quite unnecessary. In spite of our deep-rooted traditional belief that "there were giants in those days," that the men were stronger and braver and the women fairer, we have markedly improved upon our great-grandparents in the matter of health, and we have the figures to prove it.

It is perhaps difficult to believe this from internal evidence, so to speak; we know our own aches and pains and maladies, our grandfathers' we know nothing of. All the people belonging to that epoch whom we have known or heard of were in the nature of the case very old and wise, while we are painfully conscious of our youth and ignorance.

But occasionally we get a tribute from without which is so striking and convincing that we can't help noticing it. Such a one, for instance, is the arrival of an Oriental prince, a brother of the King of Siam, who has deliberately come to our shores and enrolled himself as a student in the Harvard Medical College for the degree of Doctor of Public Health, so that he can take back the benefits of modern sanitation to his millions of people. Scarcely less gratifying and significant was the recent action of the new ruler of Arabia, one of whose first steps after he had thrown off his allegiance to Turkey and Germany was to dispatch his ablest adviser to America in order to secure a chief health officer and staff for his new kingdom, who was to be given fullest powers.

Now this anxious solicitude for the health of their loving subjects on the part of royalties and potentates is neither pure benevolence and paternal regard nor a mere desire to ape the fashions and fads of the time in public matters.

It is a shrewd, clear-headed recognition that the health of its people is the surest basis and guarantee of the prosperity of a country. No State can hope to hold up its head in world competition today whose workers are down with malaria and typhoid half the year and consumption and pneumonia the other half. Even "the glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome" faded and crumbled to ruins under the onslaught of malaria, plain everyday "fever'nager"—had the life shaken out of them by the fierce shiverings and teeth chatterings of chills-and-fever.

Does the new State need men to build up an army to defend it, the quickest and surest way to get them is to lower the deathrate among babies and children, lessen the crop of short coffins. Nor is this a mere figure of speech, a pious hope. We have cut down the infant mortality during the first year from one hundred and seventy-five per thousand births to barely ninety per thousand, and more lives are lost to the country by preventable diseases of childhood than the bloodiest war can destroy. Pure figures, cold statistics don't mean much, but we are actually informed by intelligent and observant undertakers that they carry less than half the number of young children's coffins in stock which they used to thirty years ago.

Does the new kingdom need workers—men and women to build its railroads, man its factories, dig its mines, till its farms and gardens—then its deadliest enemies are the diseases of childhood—the Herods of our day—the grim reapers of young men and maidens, tuberculosis, typhoid, pneumonia and rheumatism, the maimers and cripplers of heart and kidneys and nerves and brain of manhood's prime and early afternoon.

Does the State need to increase the working-power and efficiency of its human machines to the highest limit, pure and abundant food, good houses, pure water and plenty of intelligent recreation for every man, woman and child, guaranteed and provided by the State—by the simple process of forcing the porcine class to take their feet out of the trough and disgorge all their accumulations at death into the public treasury—is the surest and only magic it need use.

And what is true of the public care of health is equally true of the personal. The new magic of hygiene really does work.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Forbidden Country

I KNOW a little fellow who has traveled wide and far,
　Among all sorts of curious lands where elves and goblins are.
He's seen the fairies dancing to the music of the breeze,
Beyond the cobweb bridges in the weeping willow trees.
He knows the gentle lullabies the frogs sing in the dell,
He understands them every word, but he will never tell.

THE rhapsody the robin chants upon the swaying limb
　Is just a song to you and me, but it has words for him.
And he knows what the rabbit says when he comes home at night
And greets his swarm of children 'neath the flickering fire-fly light.
He has the family secrets of the gauze-winged bumble bee
And keeps his knowledge to himself—it's not for you and me.

I'D like to journey forth with him along the rainbow's edge
　And watch the emerald katydids that fiddle in the sedge;
I'd like to see the pixies ride the speeding dragon flies.
And watch the light of wonder in the cricket's shining eyes.
I saw these marvels long ago—too long ago—and then,
I wandered out beyond a gate that never swings again!

Love Dies if Neglected, as Careless Husbands and Selfish Wives Find

Dorothy Dix Writes of the Criminal Stupidity of Men and Women Who, Once They Are Married, Leave Affection to Starve to Death Because They Are "Too Busy" to Protect the Greatest Gift of Life

By Dorothy Dix

THE most inexplicable of all human vagaries is the fact that we take so little trouble and precaution to safeguard love.

If a man had all his fortune in government bonds, and should leave them lying carelessly about for any thieving hand to steal, or should be so indifferent to their whereabouts that he mislaid them through his own heedlessness, we should waste scant pity on him if he lost them.

If a woman had a diamond tiara that she did not think enough of to even keep clean, and that she let get mutilated and disfigured, we should think her a sinful waster.

Yet we have this curious contradiction, that the man who could not sleep at night unless he knew that he had safely hidden his pocketbook with only $10 in it, so that burglars could not find it, and the woman who keeps her jewels locked up in a safety deposit box lest she should lose them, are so careless of the love that has been intrusted to them that they let it be lost or stolen before they know it.

It is a very pathetic truth that if men and women would take only a tithe of the pains and trouble to protect their hearts that they do to protect their worldly goods and chattels, there would be fewer divorces and fewer suits for alienation of the affections.

It is the custom to express sympathy with the jilted swain or maiden, or the deserted husband or wife. In reality, they are more to be blamed than pitied. Never to be loved is an undeserved misfortune, but to have been loved, and to have lost love, shows criminal carelessness and incompetency.

Yet this thing happens so continually that it takes innumerable detectives to hunt down the freebooters of love, and special courts to punish them for their depredations, and the air is full of the lamentations of husbands and wives, who are beating upon their breasts and wailing out that somehow, somewhere, they have lost or mislaid the affection of their spouses.

How does it happen?

Wakes Up One Day to Find Her as Indifferent as He Has Been.

A man marries a woman who gives him her whole loving heart, her romantic girlish dreams, her tender, clinging, sensitive soul. It's a great gift, enough to make a man a billionaire of affection, and you would think that he would exhaust every device, every particle of ingenuity in keeping it safe. But he doesn't.

He is too busy to protect it, too careless to lock it up. He doesn't even take the trouble to look at it now and then to see that it is still in his possession.

He is so interested in his business that he is away from home from early morn until dinner time, and then he is too tired and too absorbed in his affairs to bother about what his wife thinks or wants or desires.

Still less does he worry himself to find out whether he still owns her love, and then some day he wakes up to find out that she is just as indifferent to him as he is to her.

He has lost her love.

It may have wasted away, little by little, as gold dust sifts through a tiny hole in a miner's pouch, or it may have been lost all in a lump when she realized that she had cast her pearls before swine, but it is gone—hopelessly and irretrievably lost.

Or, his own may have been the hand that set the door of his wife's heart wide open for thieves to come in and steal his wife's treasure.

Wife Loses Affection of Her Husband by Neglecting to Deserve It

She craved sympathy; he gave her none. She loved amusement; he was too busy to accompany her even to the theatre, or too stingy to give her as much as a treat of a restaurant supper.

She had enthusiasm for art and literature; he mocked at them.

She loved society; he let her go into it alone and unguarded.

Be sure that no man ever alienates the affection of another man's wife unless the husband is too indifferent to keep what he has won.

How does a woman lose her husband's affection?

By the same road. By laziness, by weakness, by incompetency, by triflingness, by carelessness.

She first charmed him by her prettiness and daintiness. She lets herself grow slouchy and unattractive.

He fell in love with her because she was amiable and sweet. She grows querulous and complaining and fretting.

He dreamed of a home that would be full of comfort and peace. She makes one where all the demons of discomfort and dirt and discontent have their abode.

She complains that other women have stolen her husband's heart away from her, but they could not have done it if she had not given them the opportunity.

The coquettes of the world are merely sneak thieves that pilfer the things that are lying around loose on which they can put their hands easily. They cannot break through the impregnable wall of understanding and sympathy and devotion that husband and wife can build about each other's heart if they will.

We spend our lives devising ways to keep our cash and our gew-gaws safe, but we do nothing to protect our love and keep it from getting lost or stolen. Yet if we lose our money we can make more; if our jewels are stolen we may possibly recover them, but if we once lose love, it is gone forever—nothing can ever restore it to us again.

Oh, the pity of it!

In-Shoots

We always admire the fellow who has sense enough to realize that our argument is a feast of reason.

The man who would give you his last dollar seldom possesses a nickel.

The wife has been the alarm clock that has awakened many a slothful cuss to action.

When a girl loves a fellow, ten cents' worth of peppermints from him taste sweeter than a two-dollar box of bon-bons.
